Meet the Autobots! Optimus Prime is their leader.

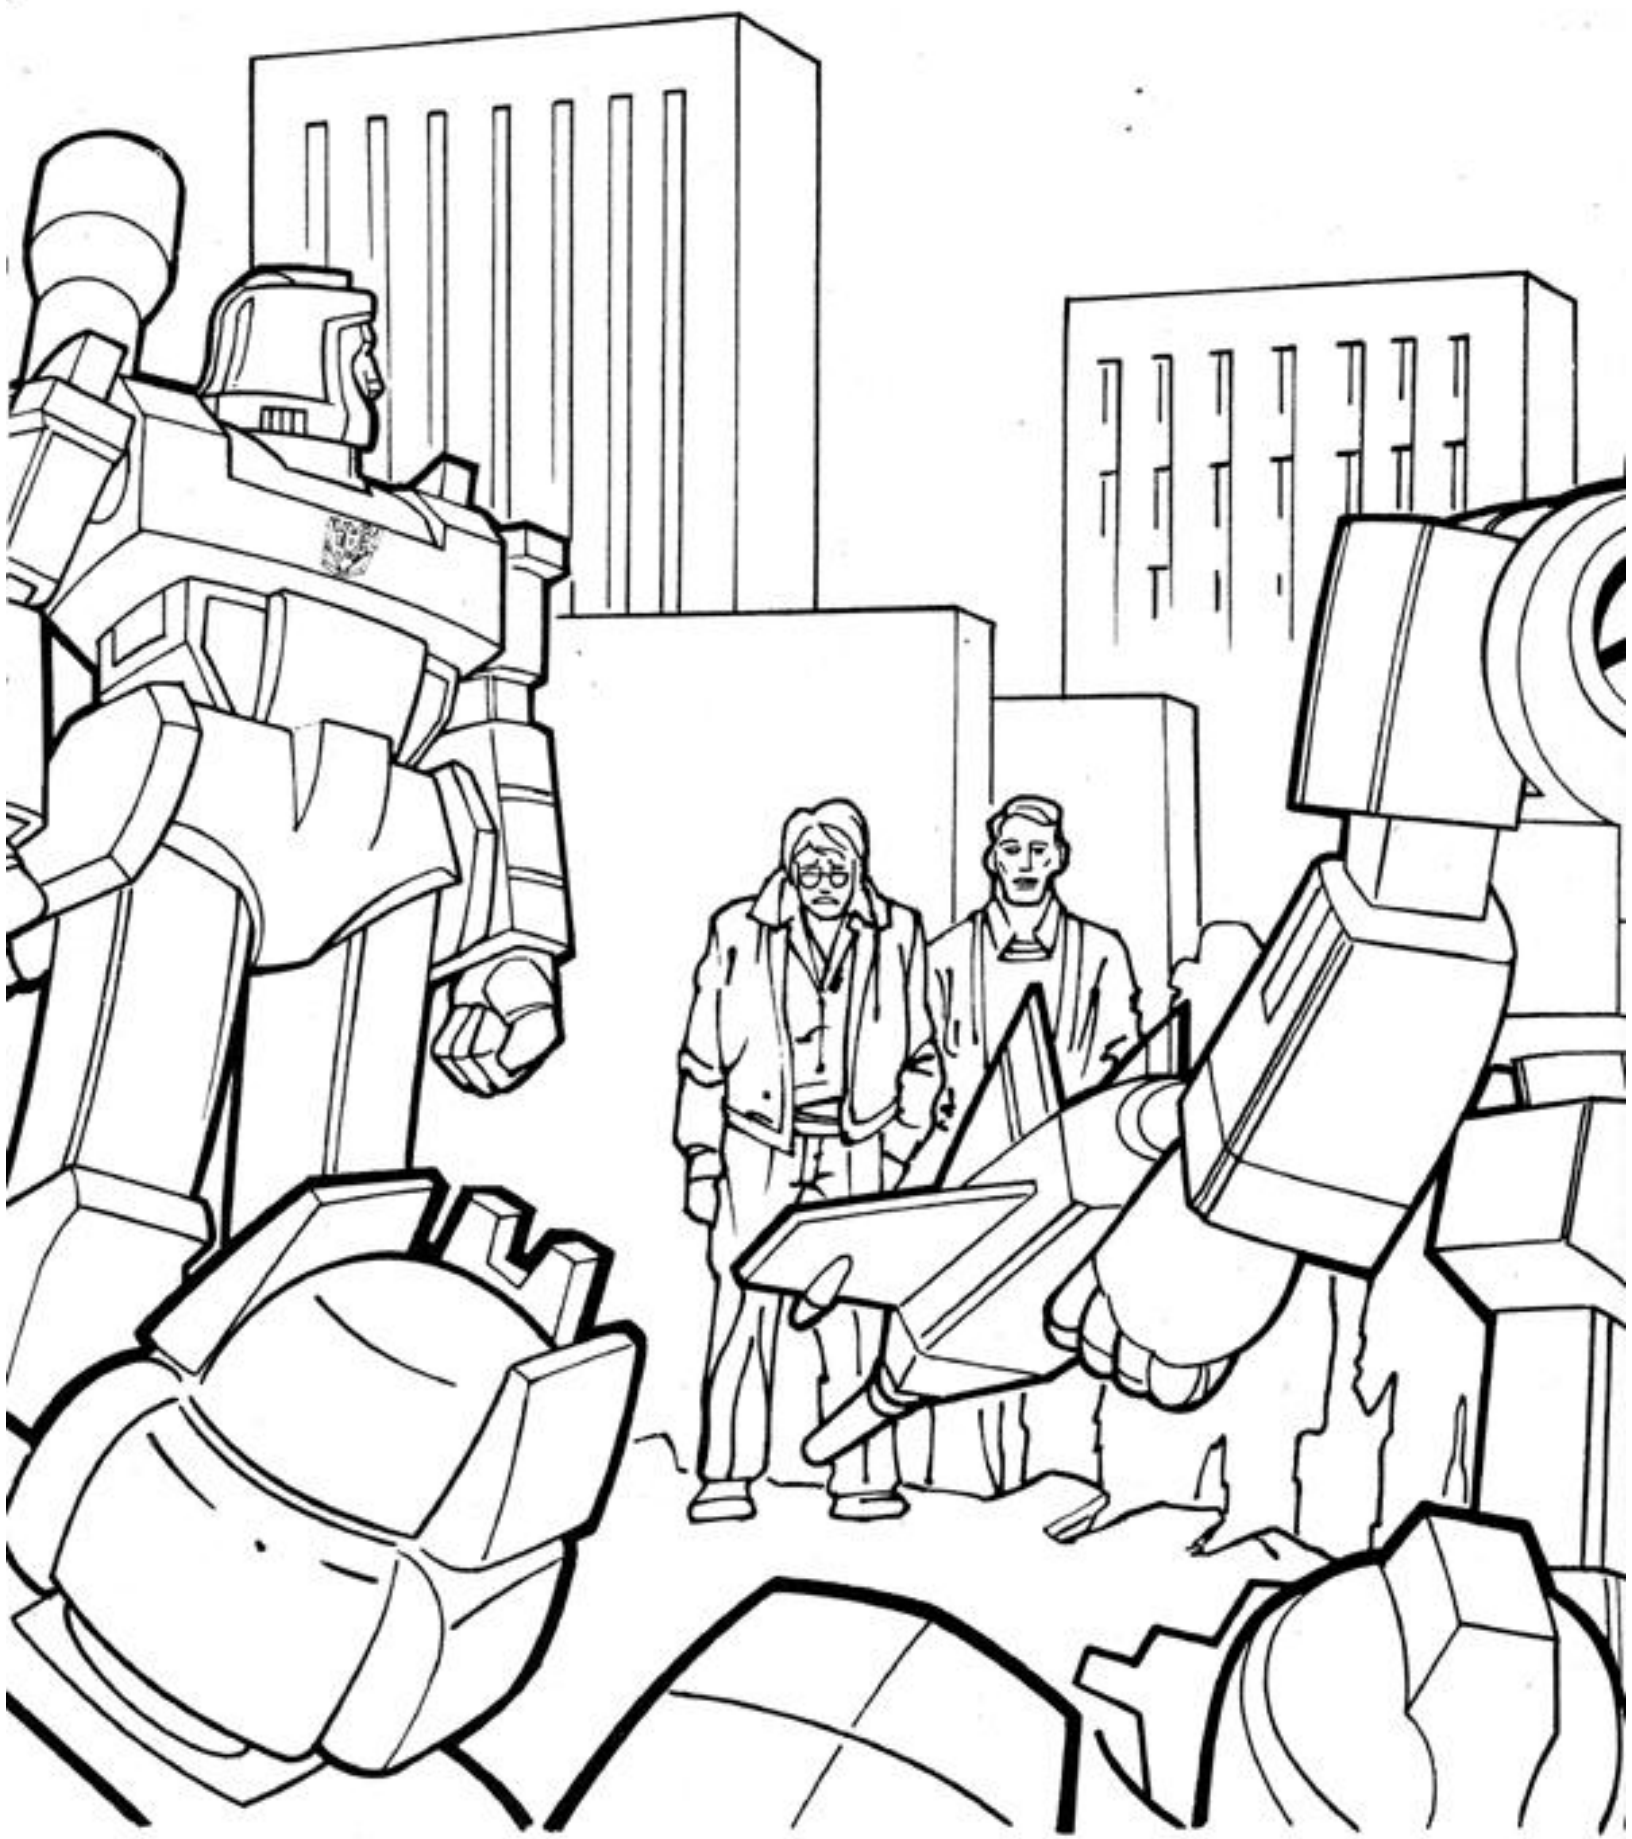

The Autobots like Earth, but would rather return to their home planet, Cybertron, if they could.

The Decepticons are from Cybertron, too. Autobots and Decepticons have always been enemies.

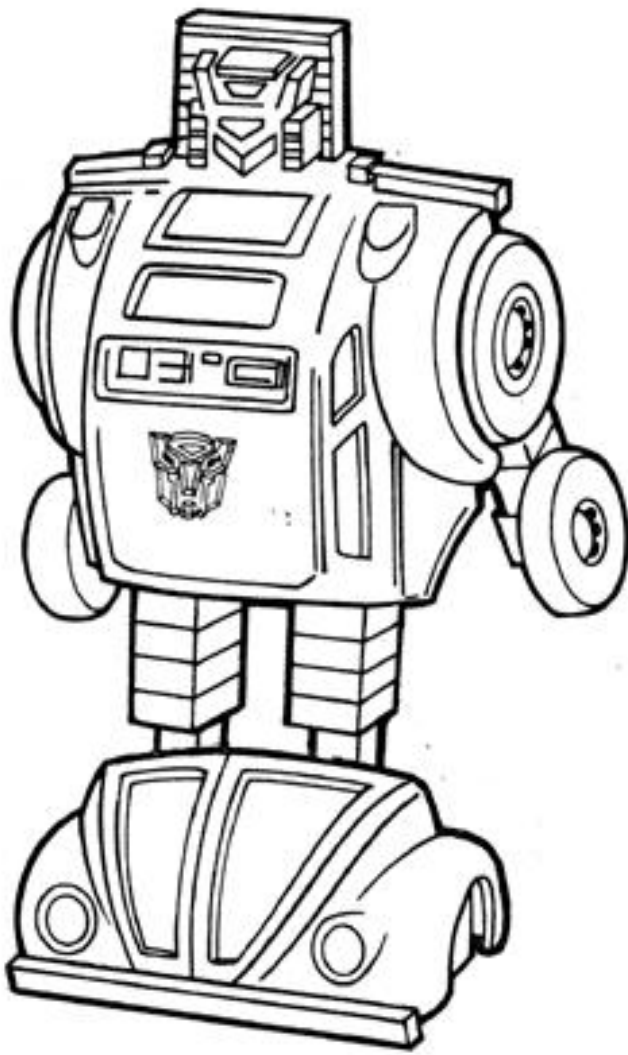

The Decepticons' leader—Megatron. Megatron has no known weaknesses!

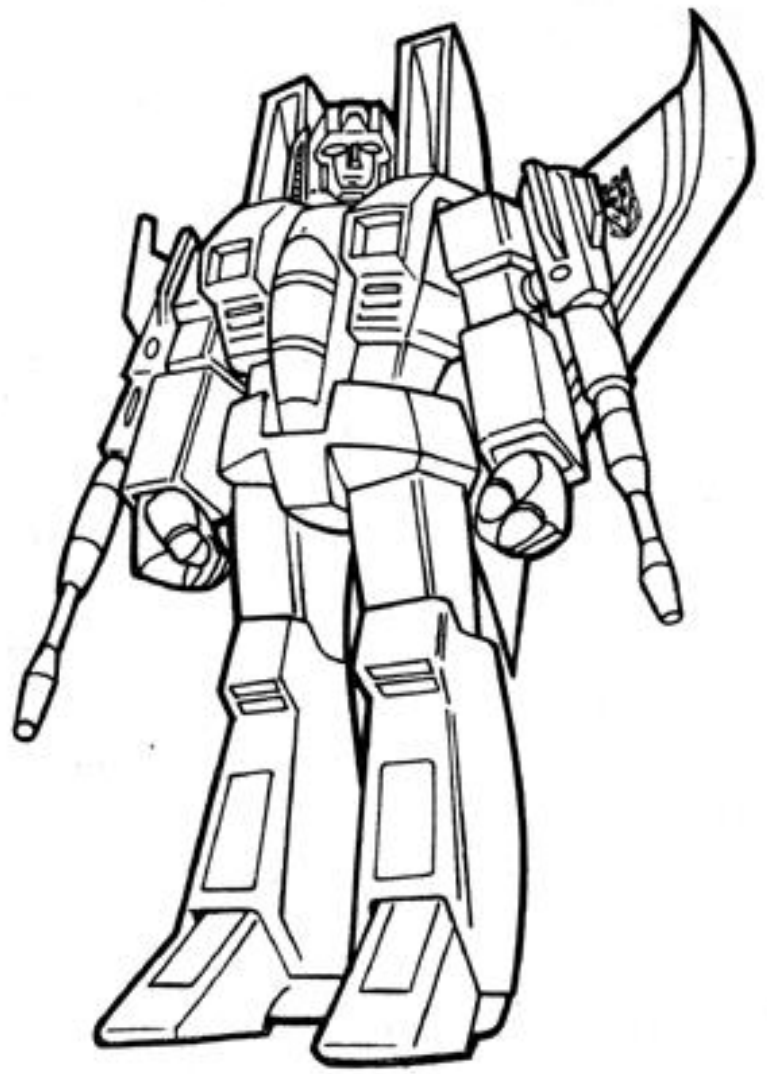

"Decepticons, we should rule Earth," says Megatron.

The Autobots want to protect Earth and its people.

Both Autobots and Decepticons can change shape into familiar Earth objects.

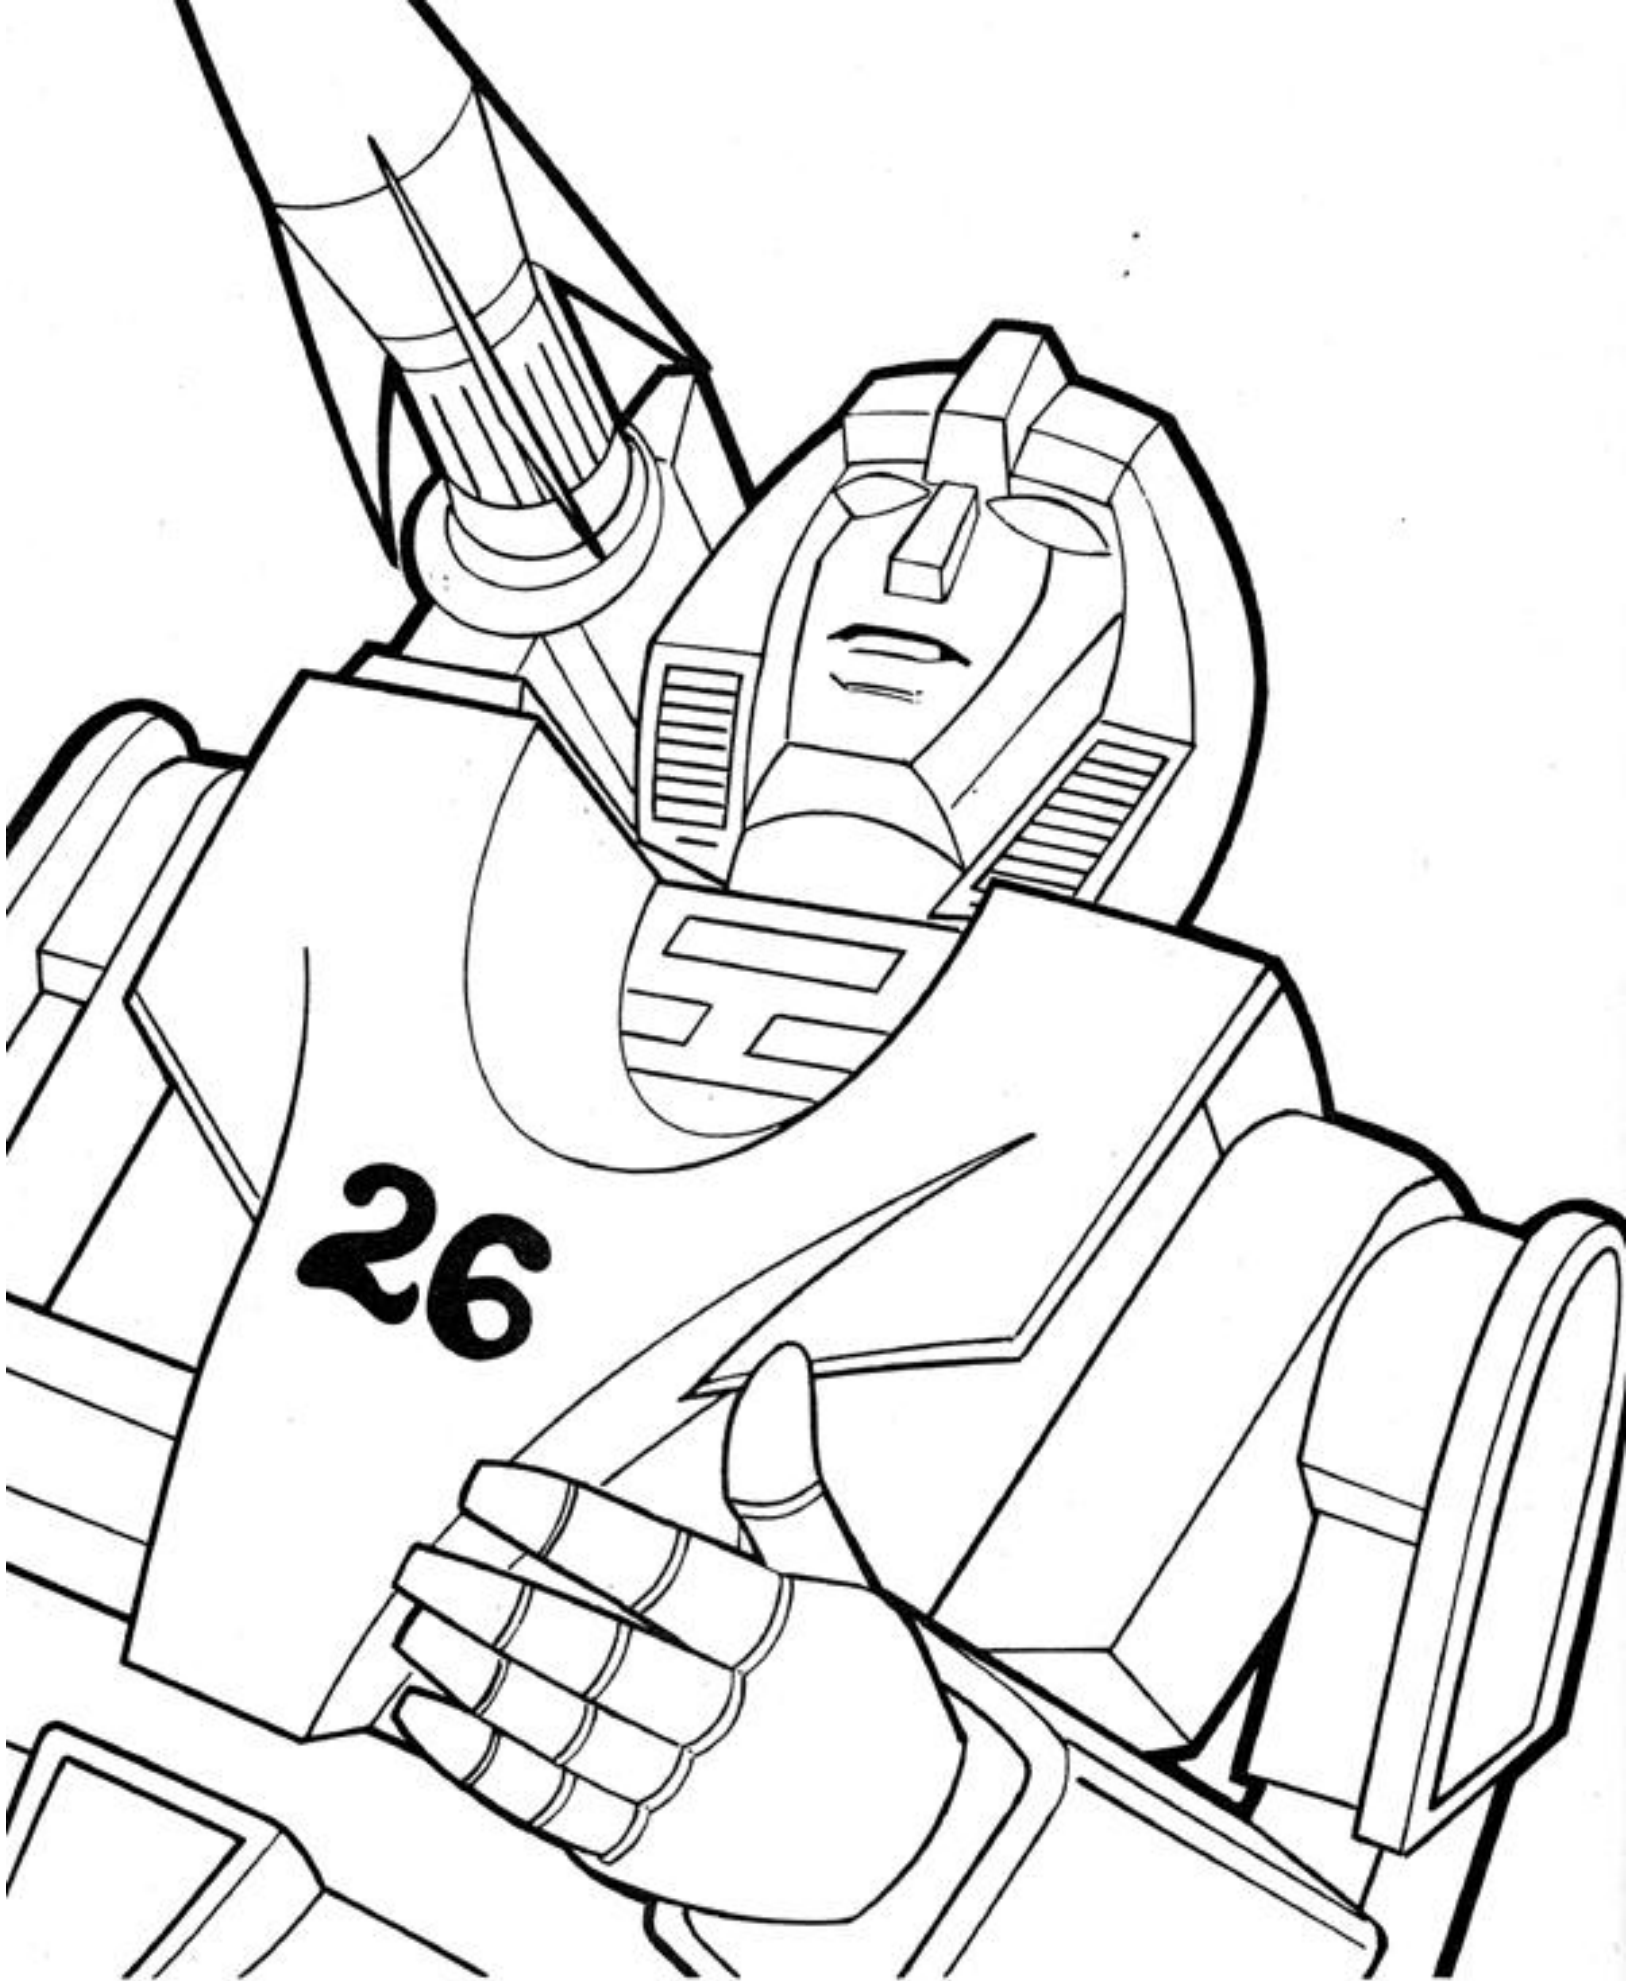

"Optimus," Jazz says excitedly. "Gas is disappearing from storage tanks all over the world!" Battle-scarred Ironhide growls.

Optimus is alarmed. "By controlling this important energy resource," he says, "the Decepticons could take over Earth!"

"Besides," Ironhide says, "We need gas, too!"

"I'm glad we don't all need as much as you do." Mirage jokes.

"Our molecular transfer device can move gas from one place to another, without our moving a finger," the cowardly Laserbeak gloats.

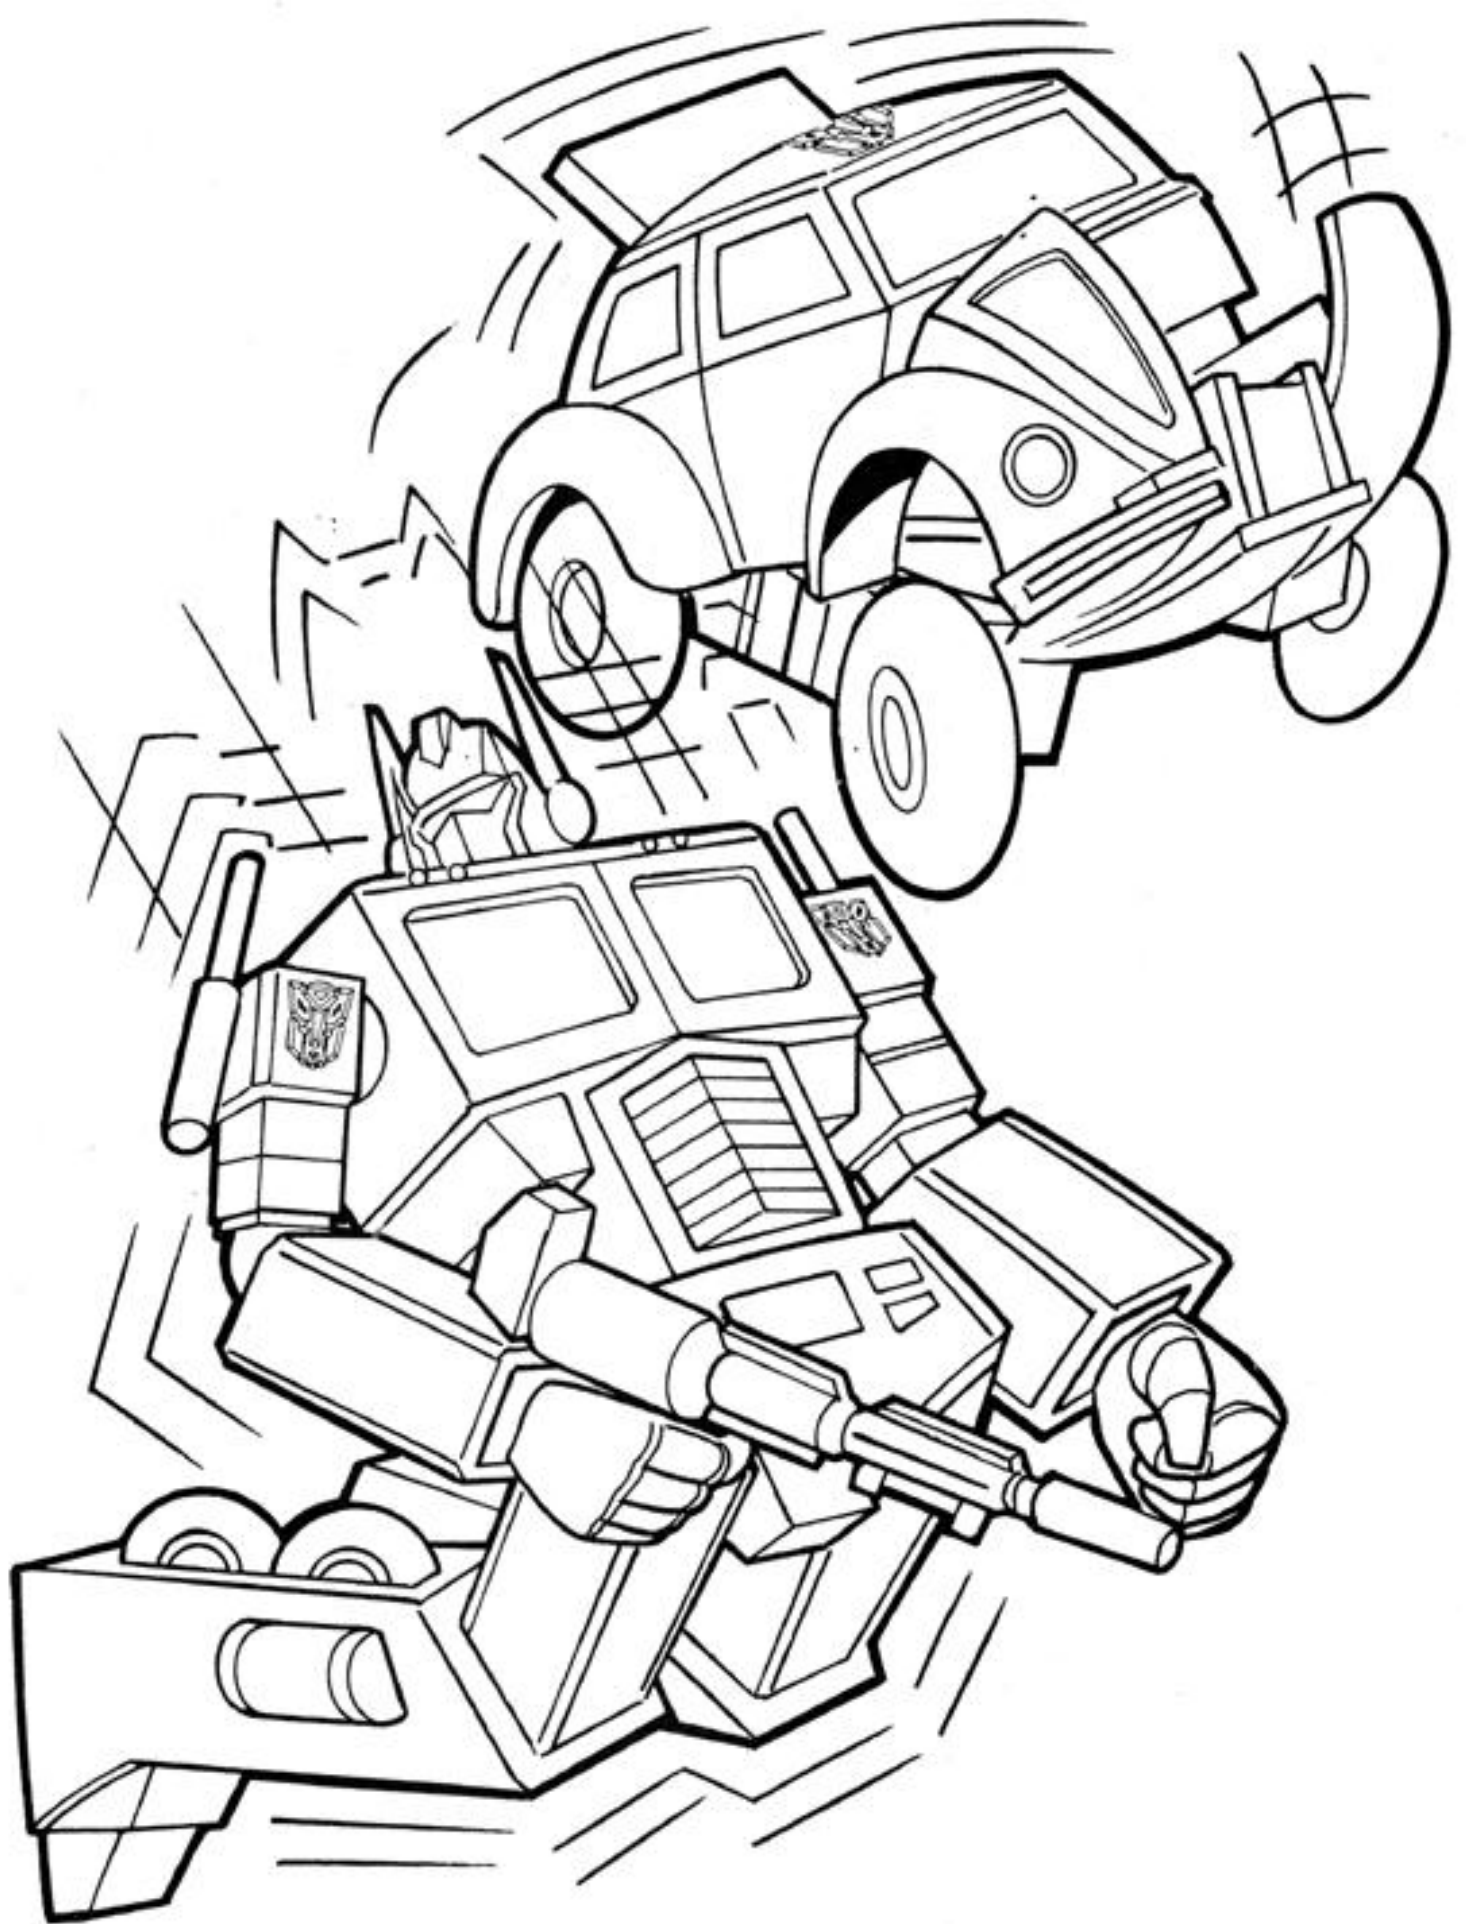

"Without gas," the evil Skywarp says, "human industries will collapse! Earth will be ours!"

Optimus splits into his three independent modules; Optimus, Combat Deck, and Roller. Roller, the spy, sees into the Megatron stronghold.

"Get ready, Autobots," Optimus orders. "We must invade the Decepticon stronghold and dismantle their device!"

The Autobots change into vehicles.

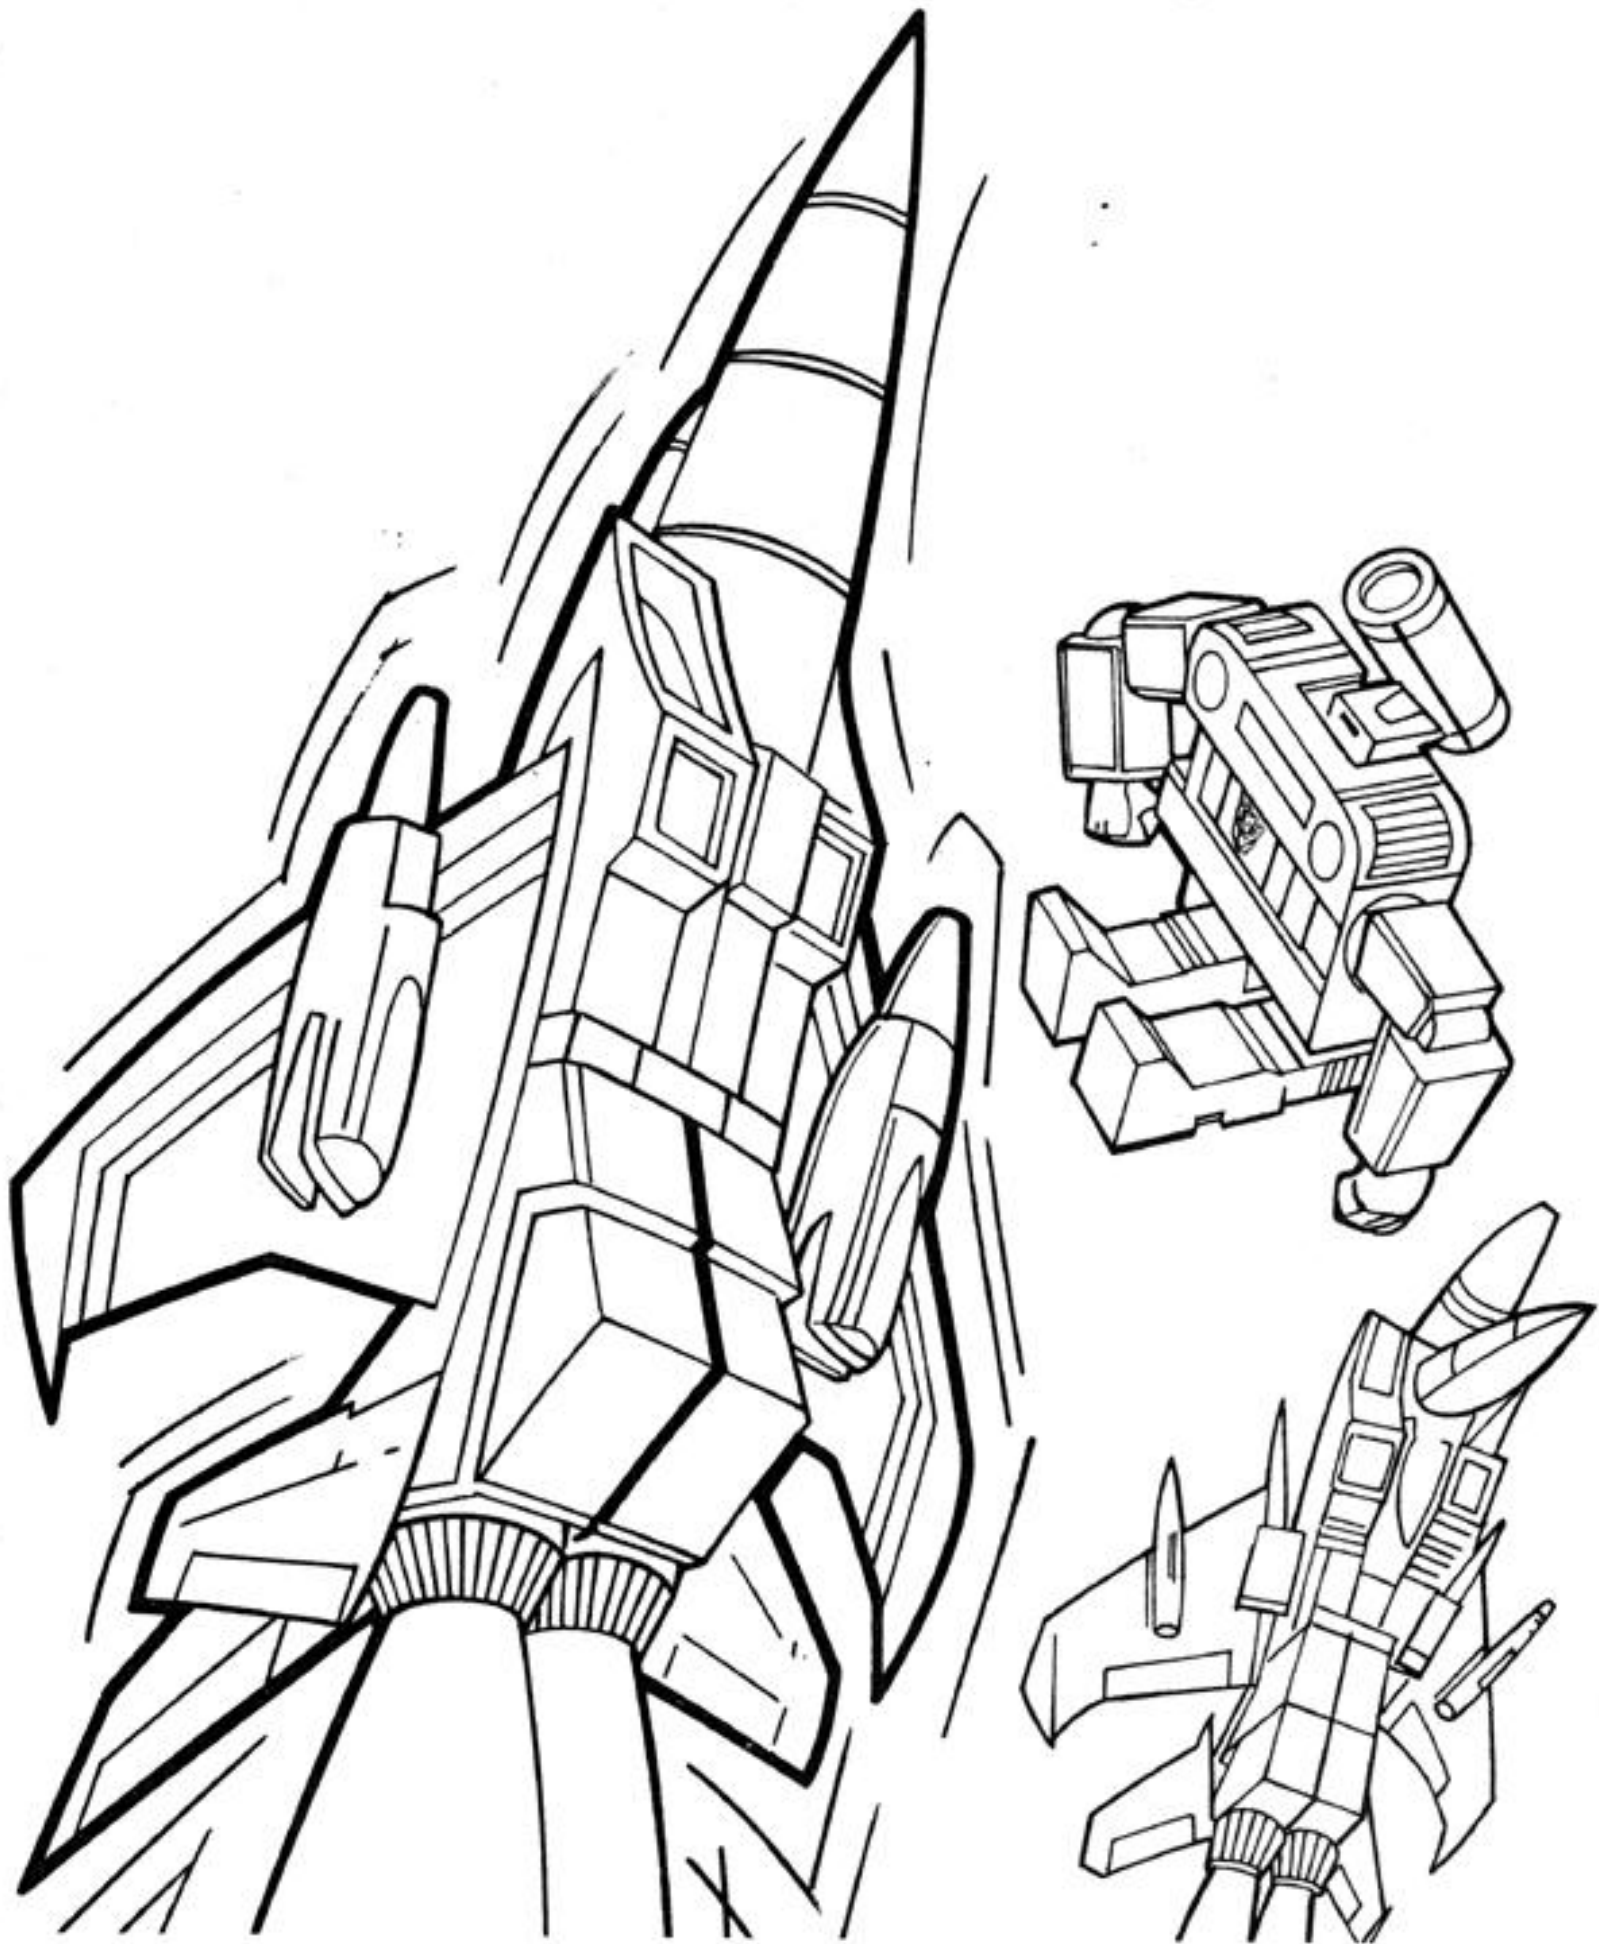

Hound, the Autobot's best tracker, leads the group toward the Decepticons' stronghold.

Decepticon Skywarp streaks overhead. He alerts the other Decepticons.

Decepticons rush out. "I'll fry'em from the sky," Starscream brags.

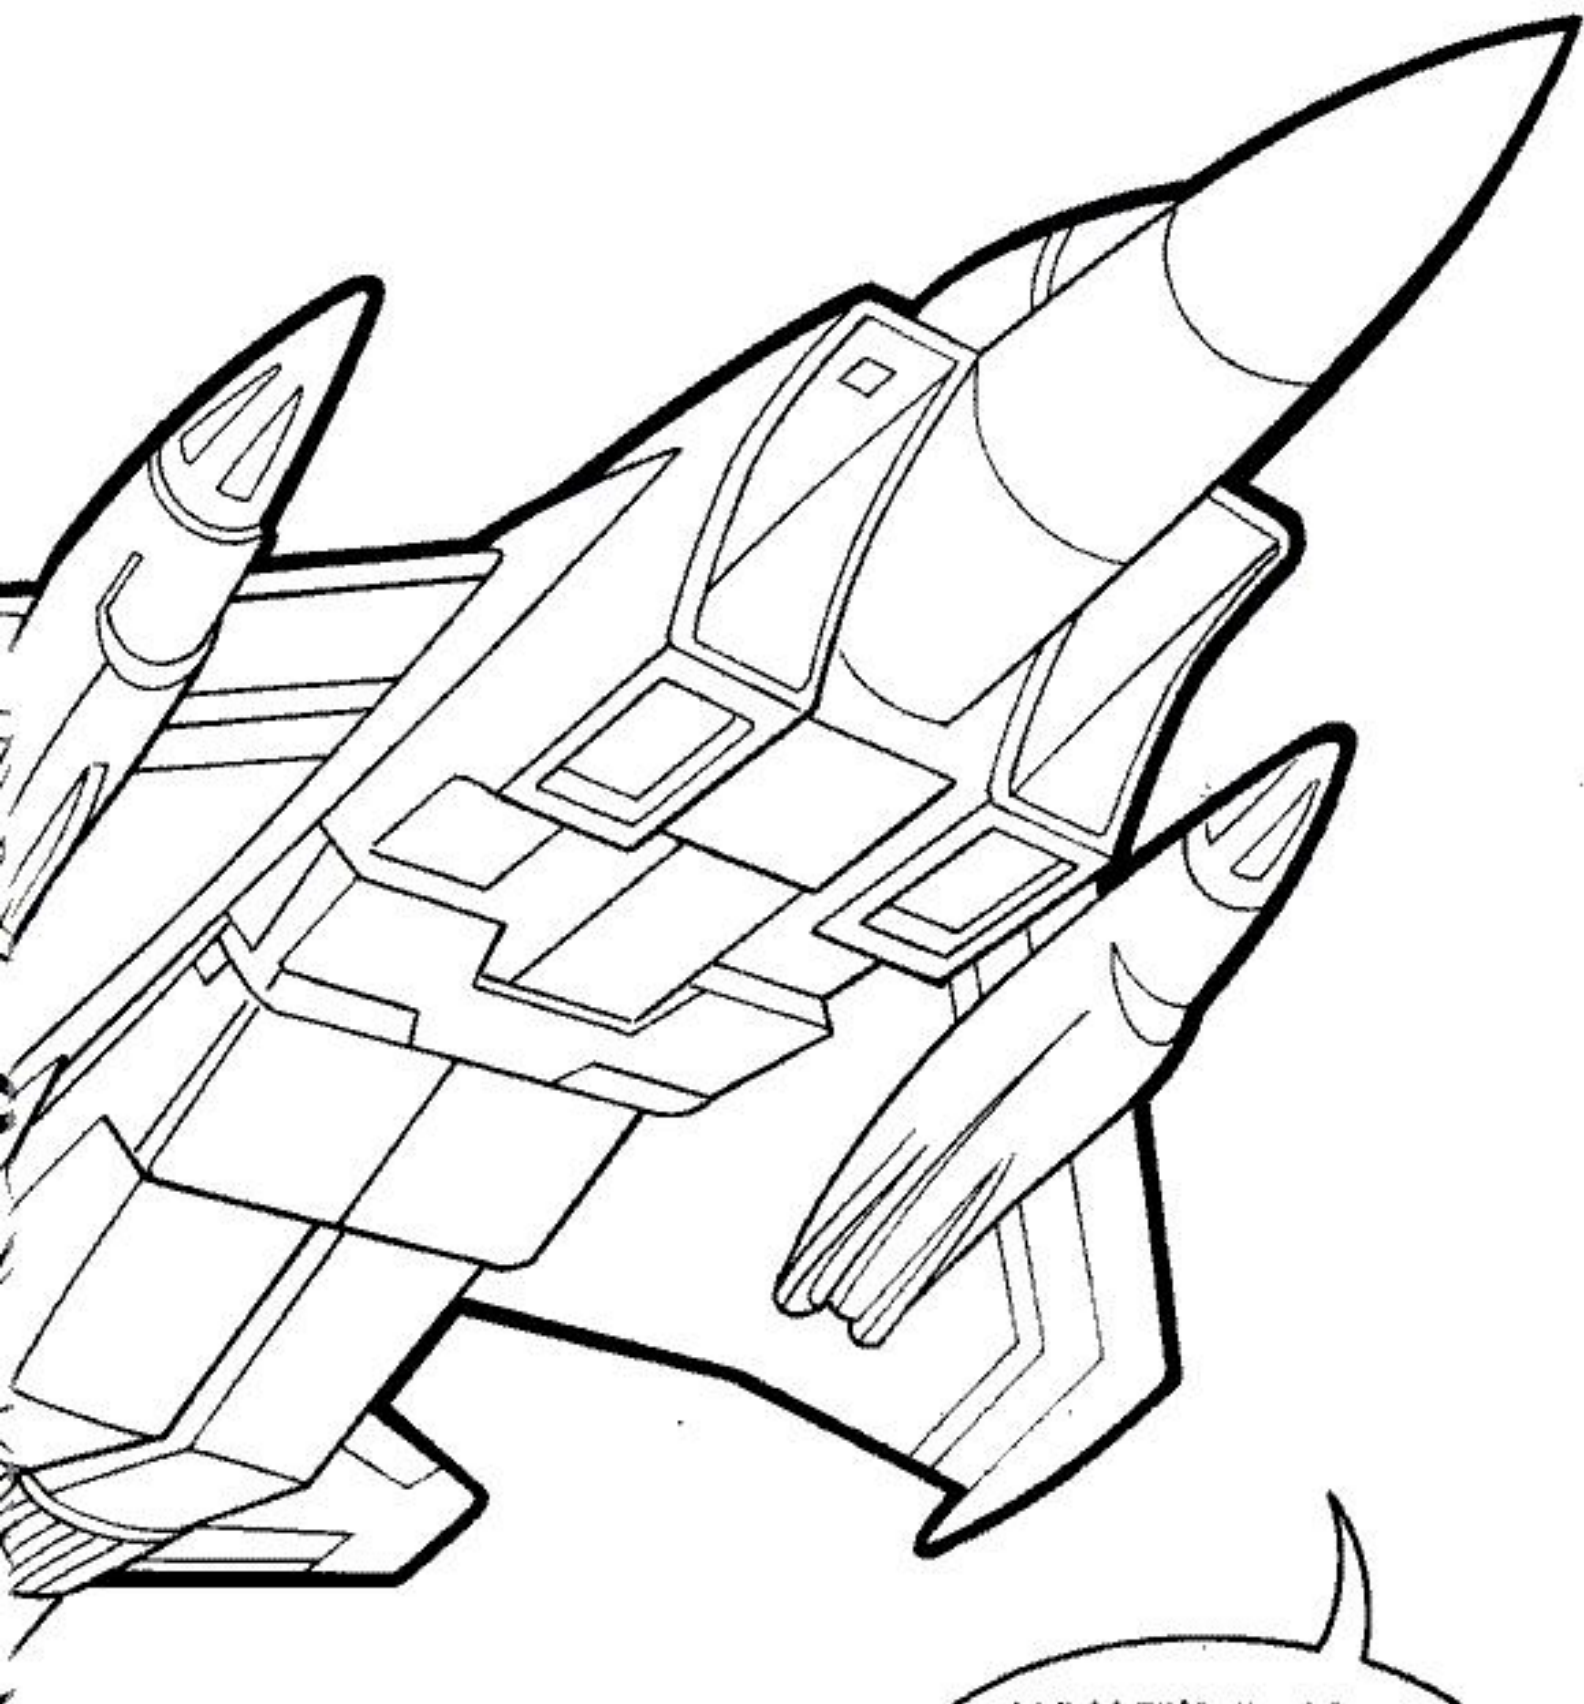

Decepticons and Autobots meet in combat. "Just like always," Autobot veteran Ironhide growls.

Huffer is furious at jet fighter Starscream!

Windcharger uses his magnetic ability to bring Starscream into Huffer's range.

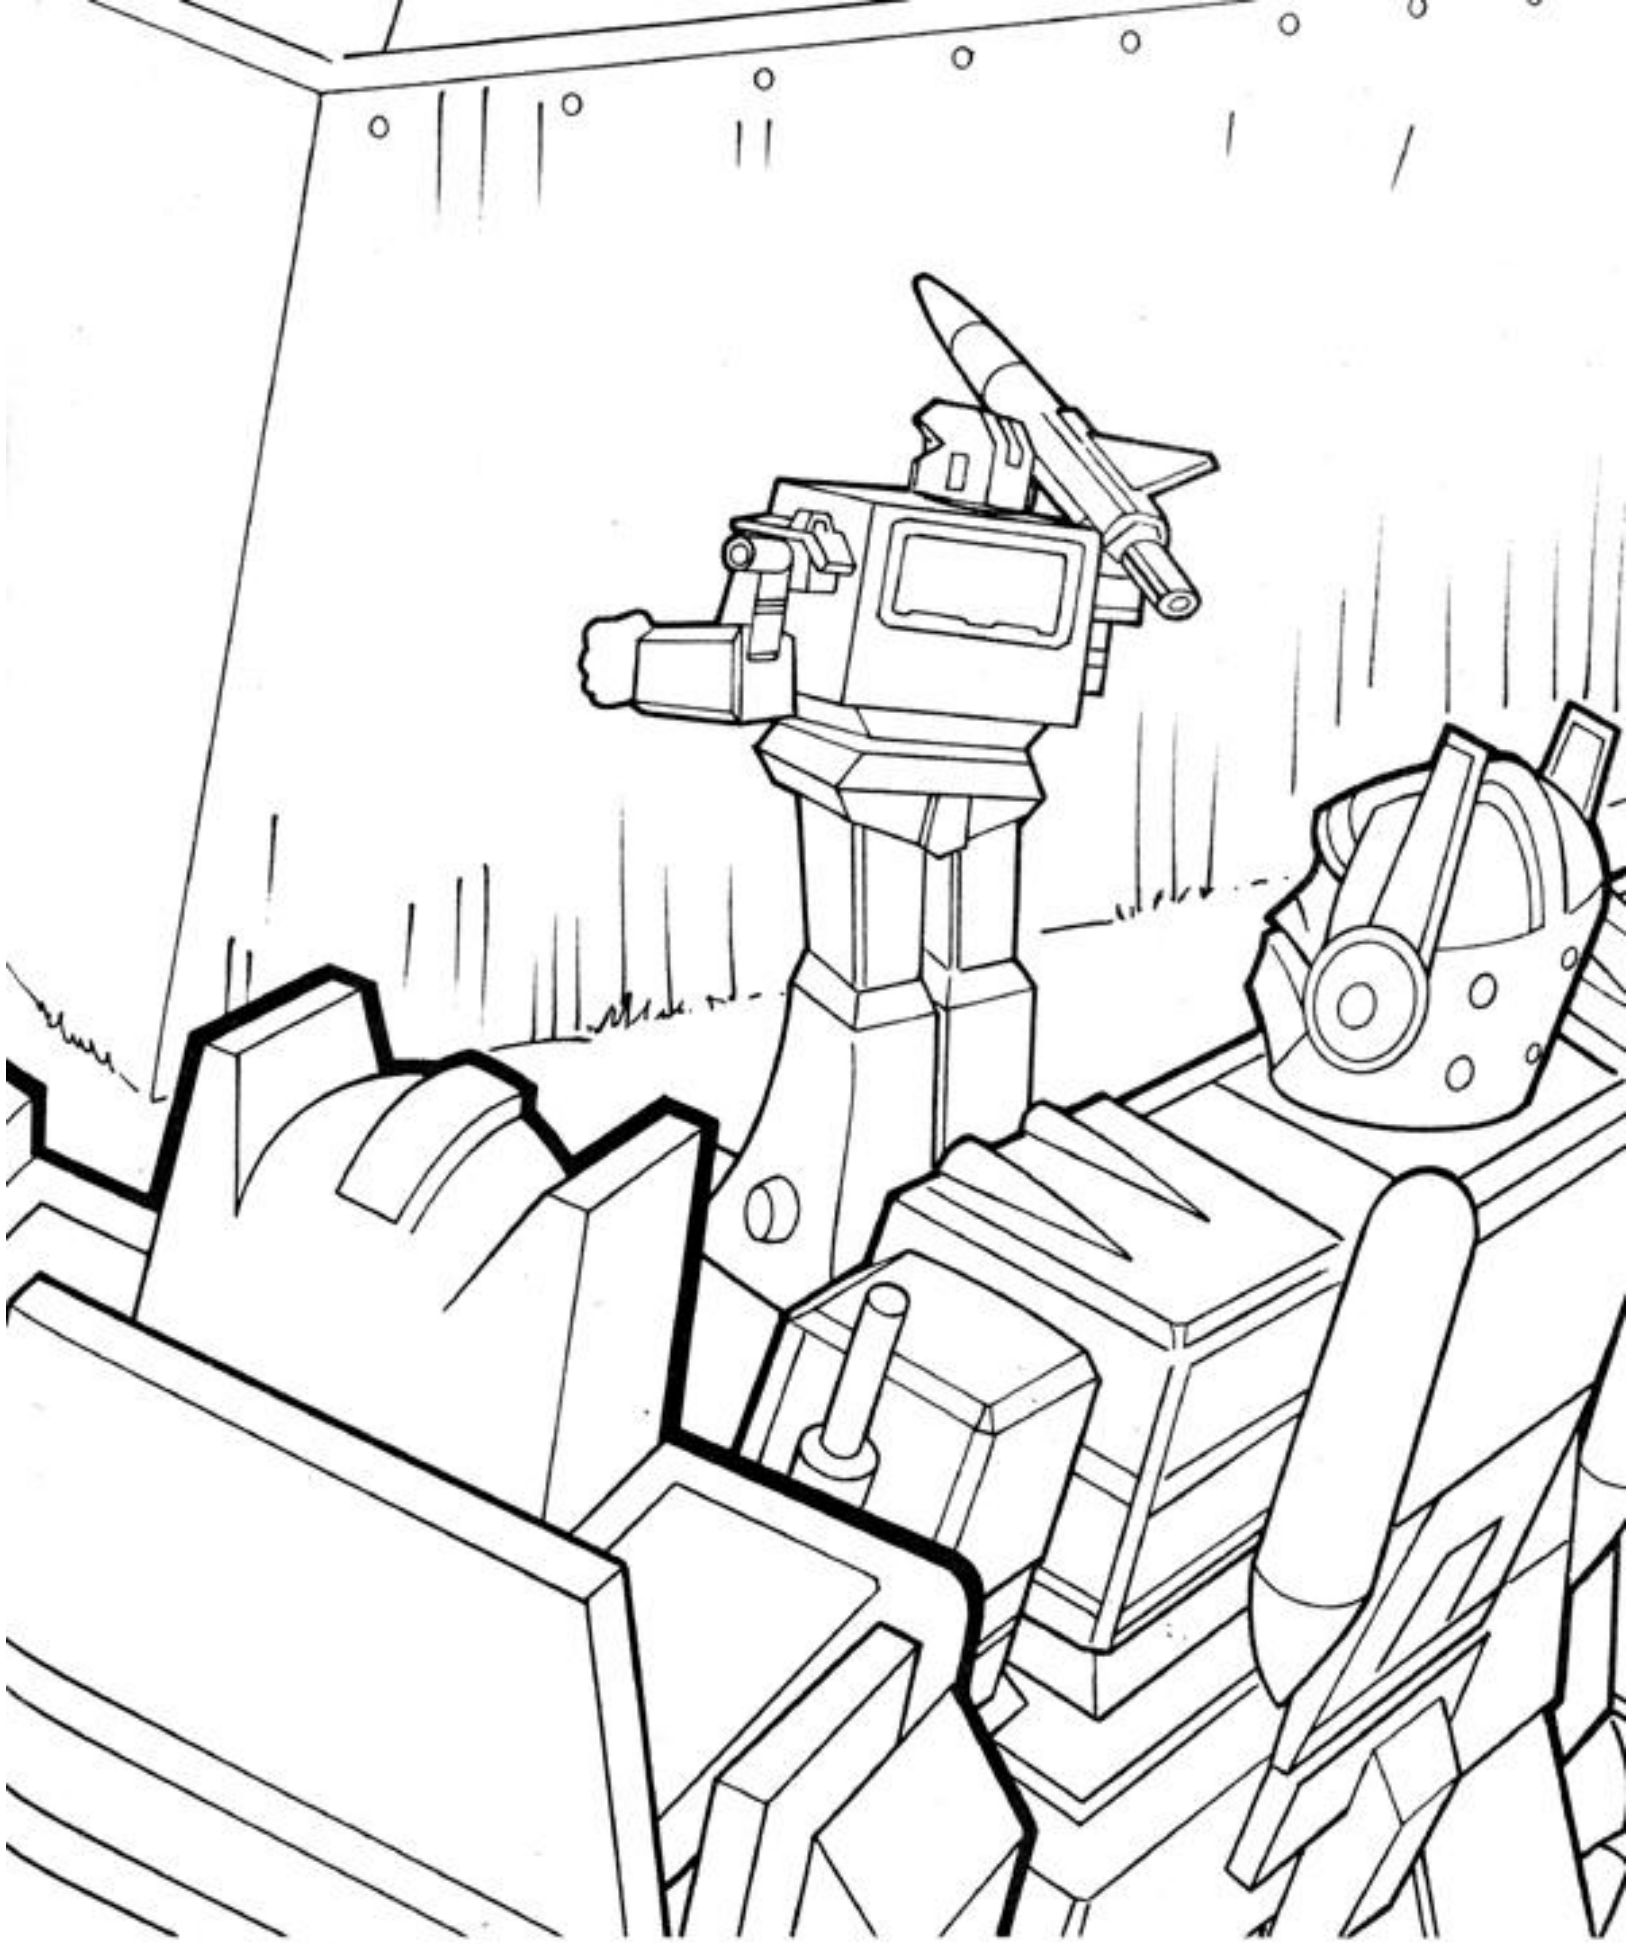

Great work!

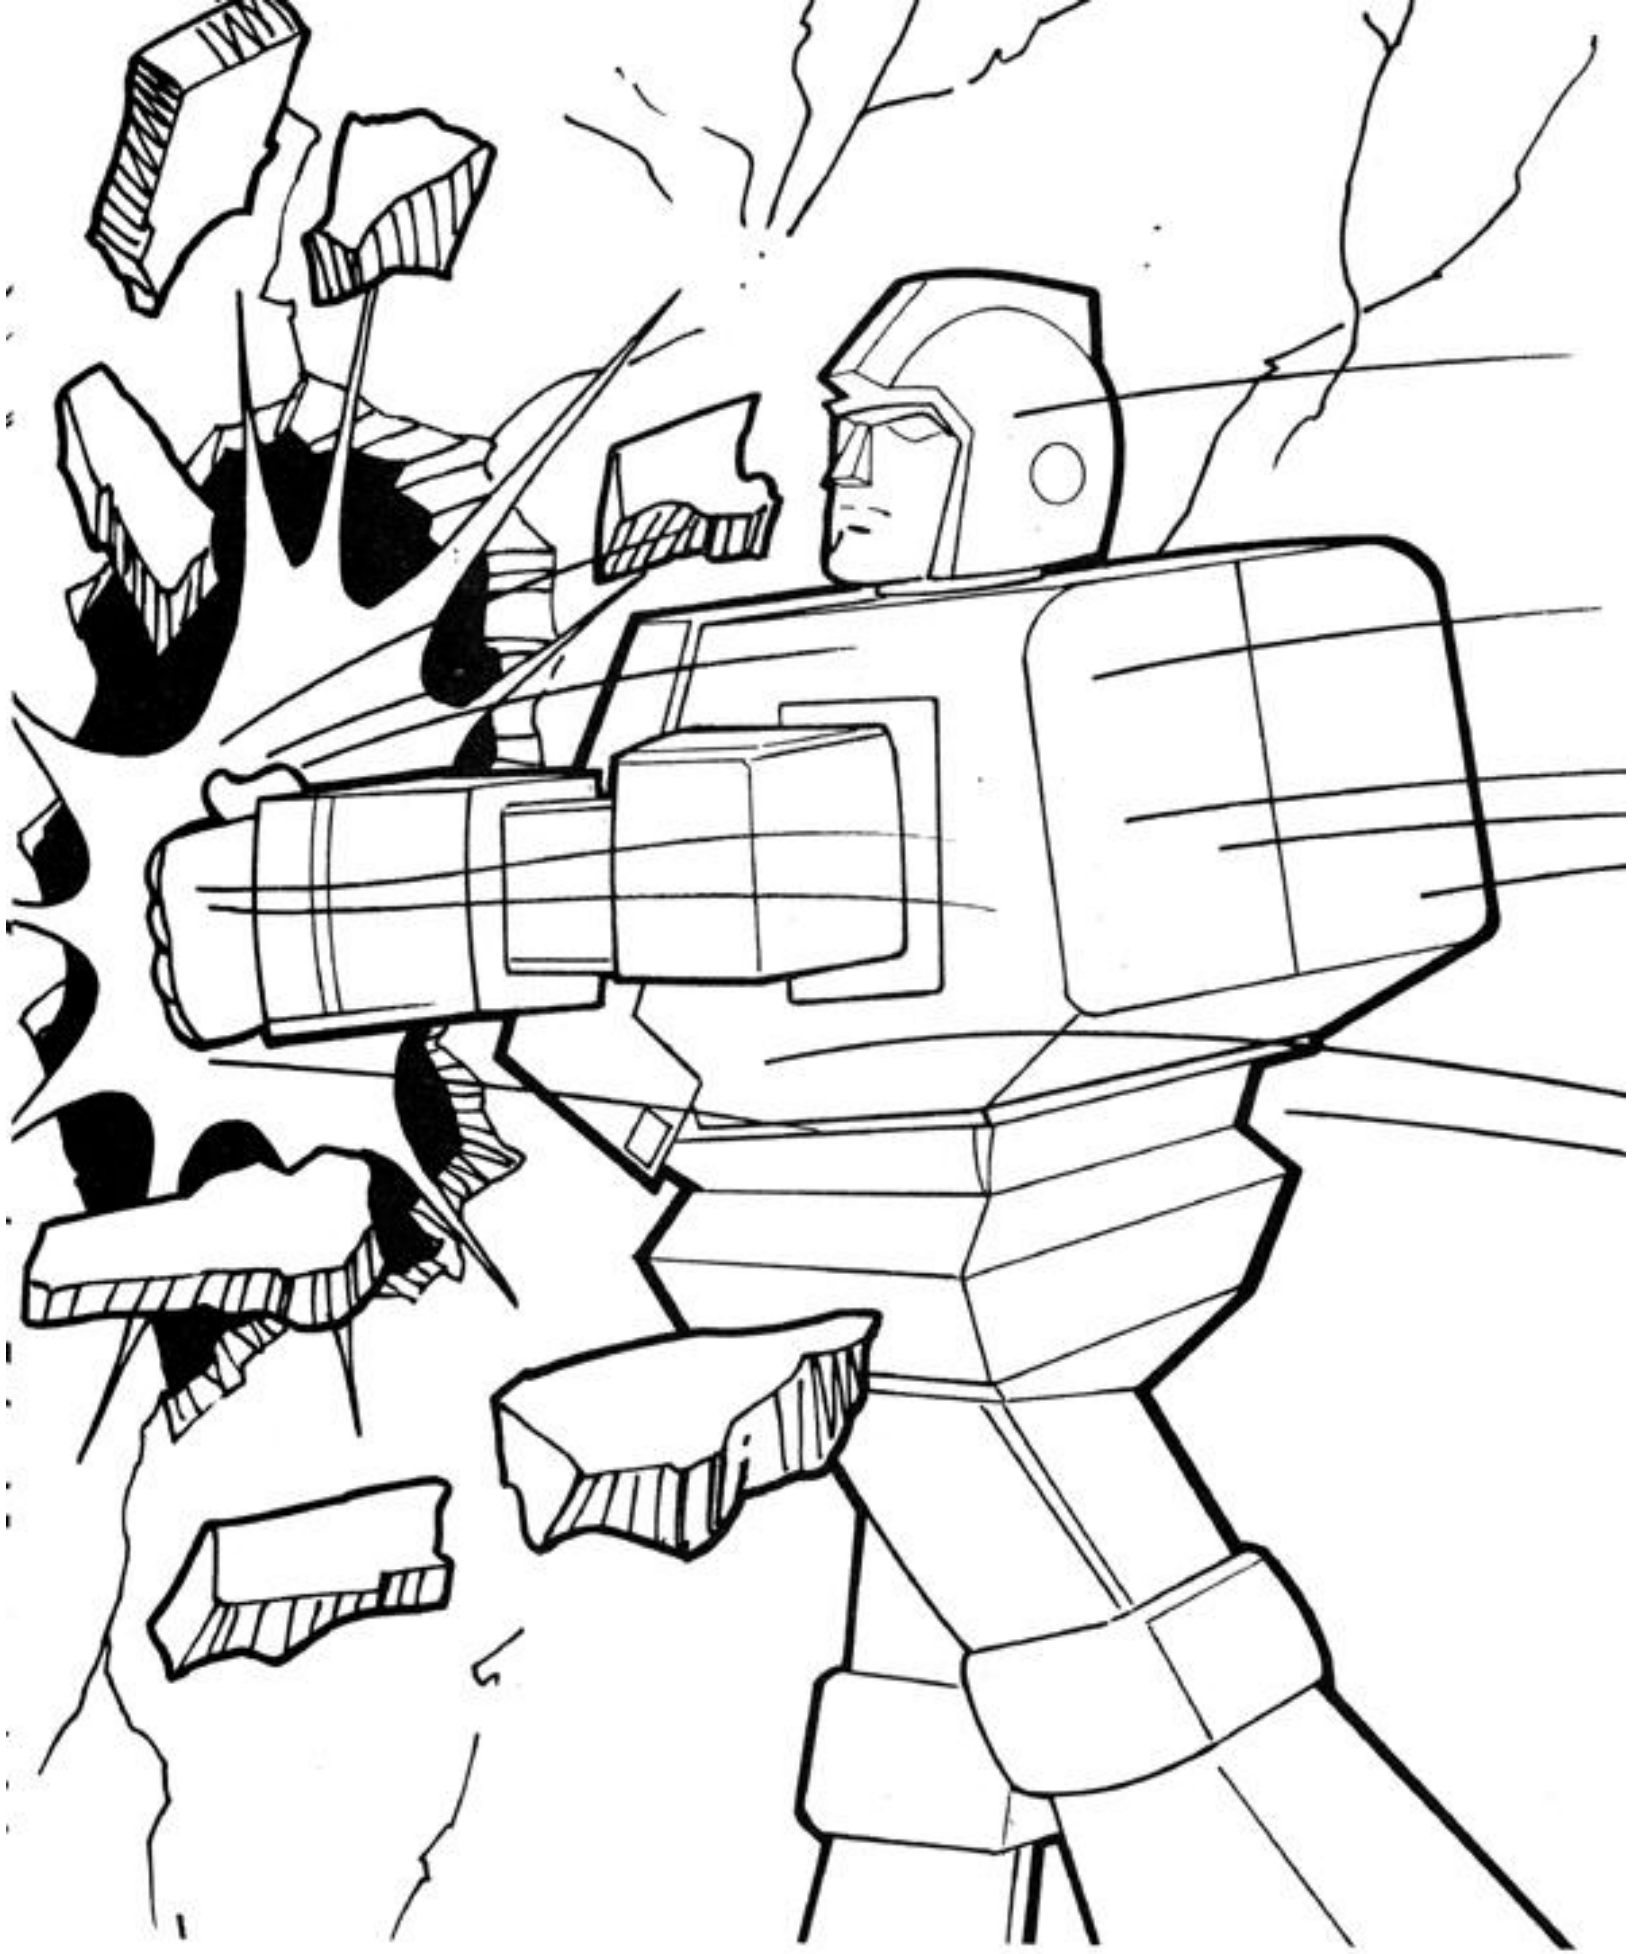

Watch out —Laserbeak loves a sneak attack!

Jazz's flame thrower makes things hot for the cowardly Laserbeak.

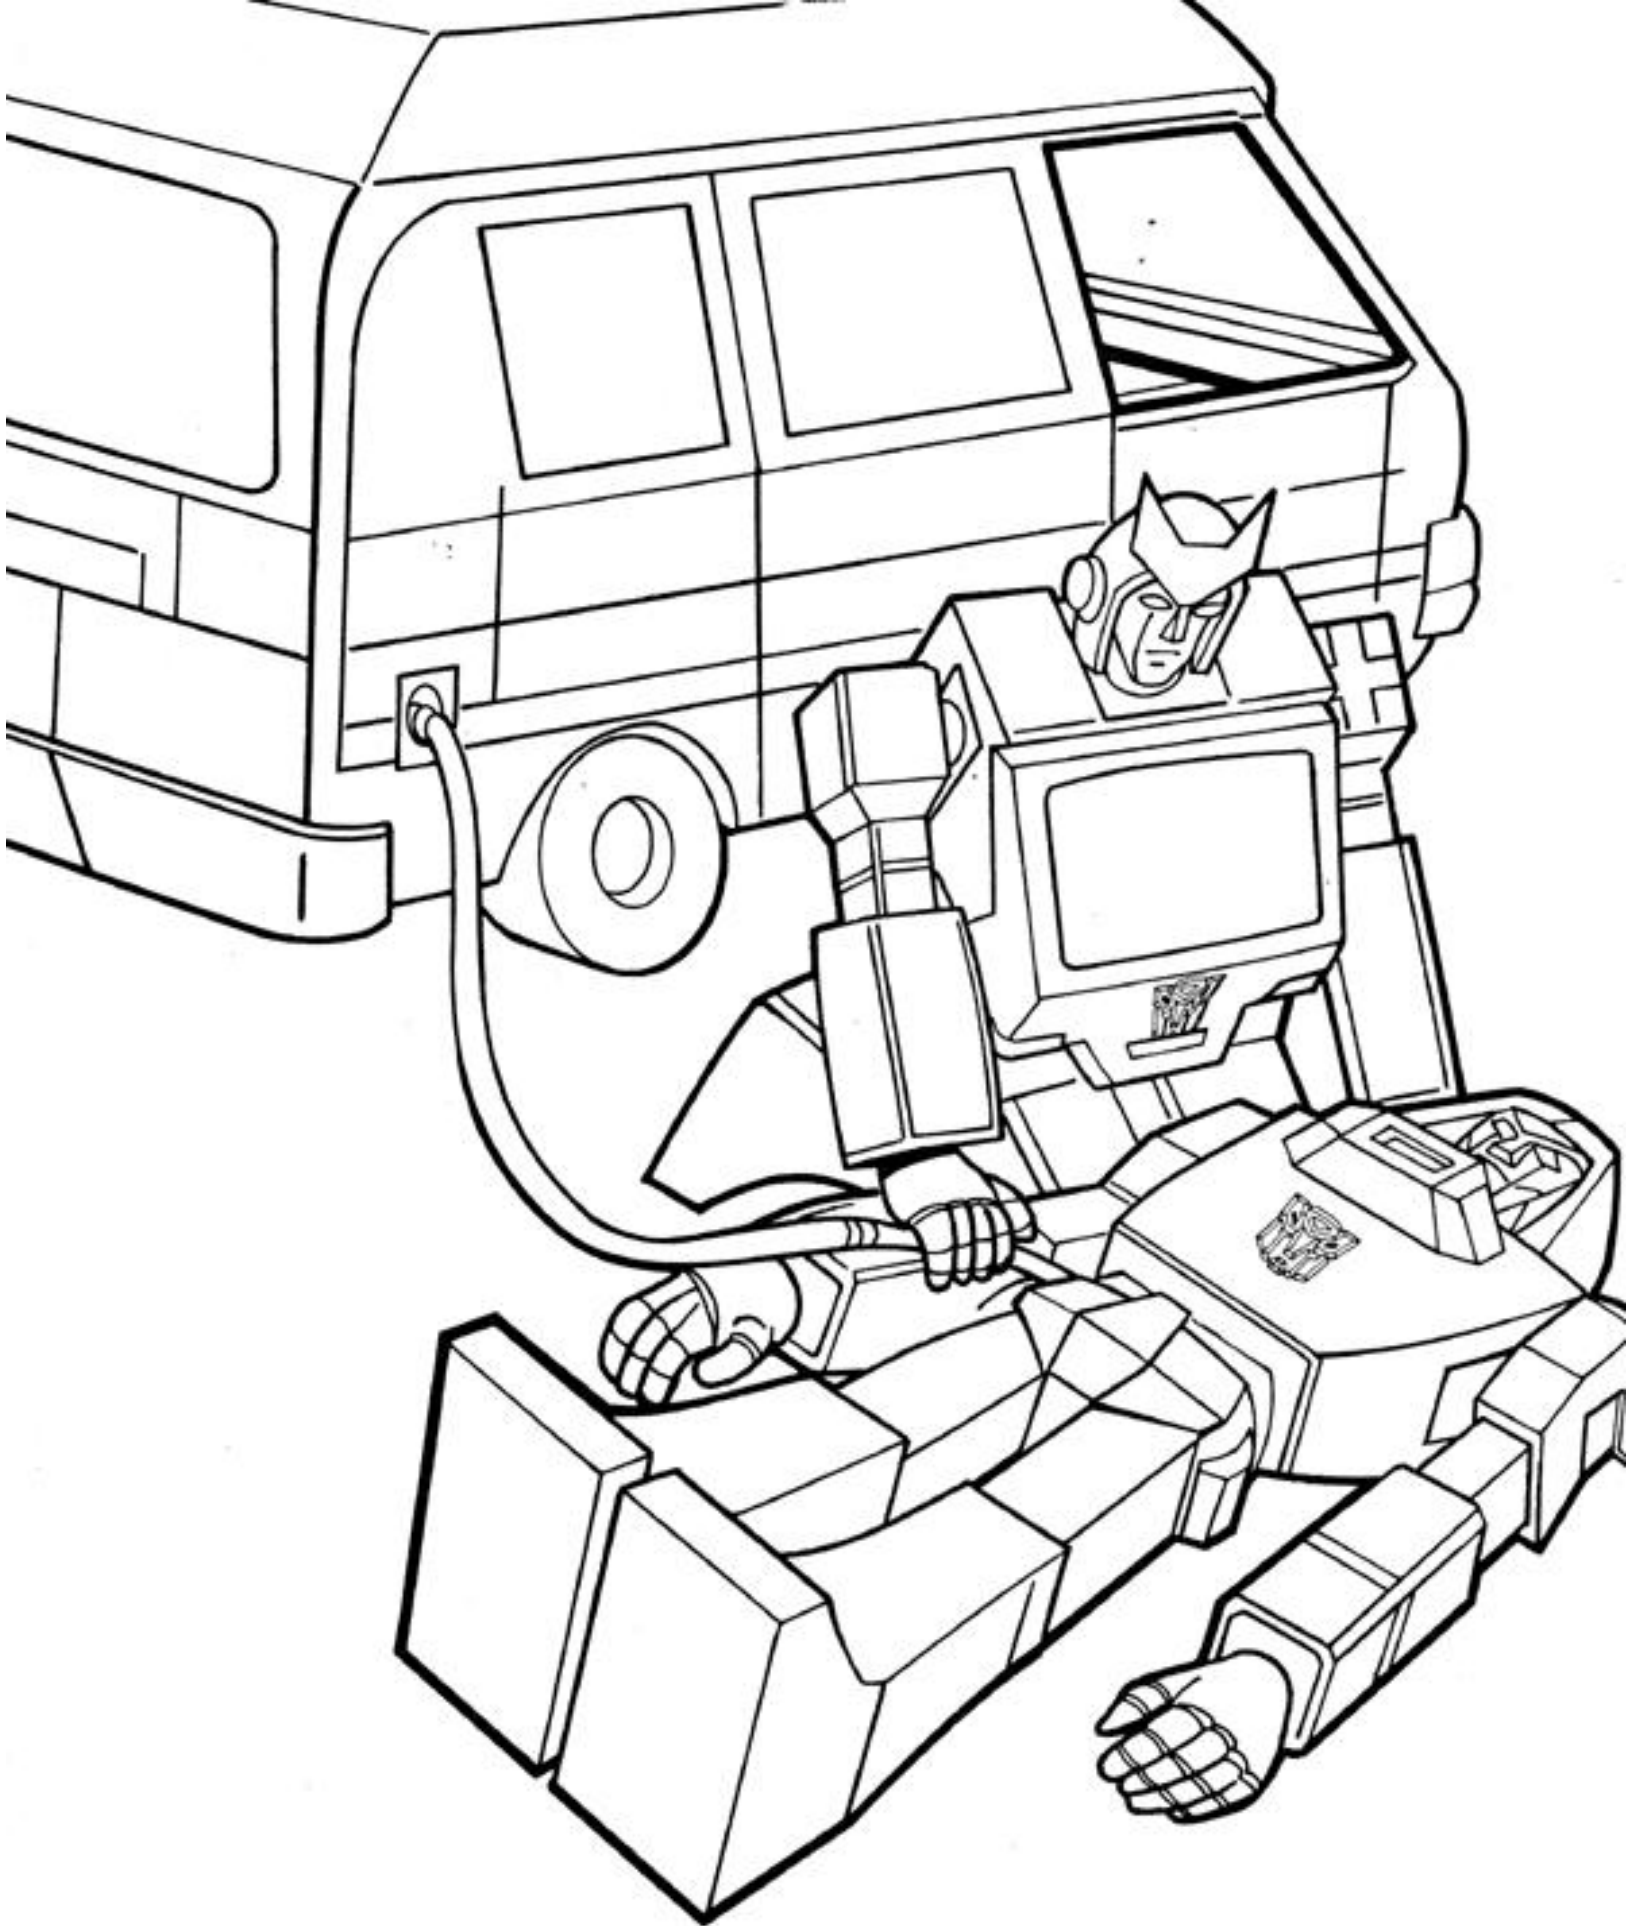

"Here's the stronghold," Hound says, "but I can't find an opening!"

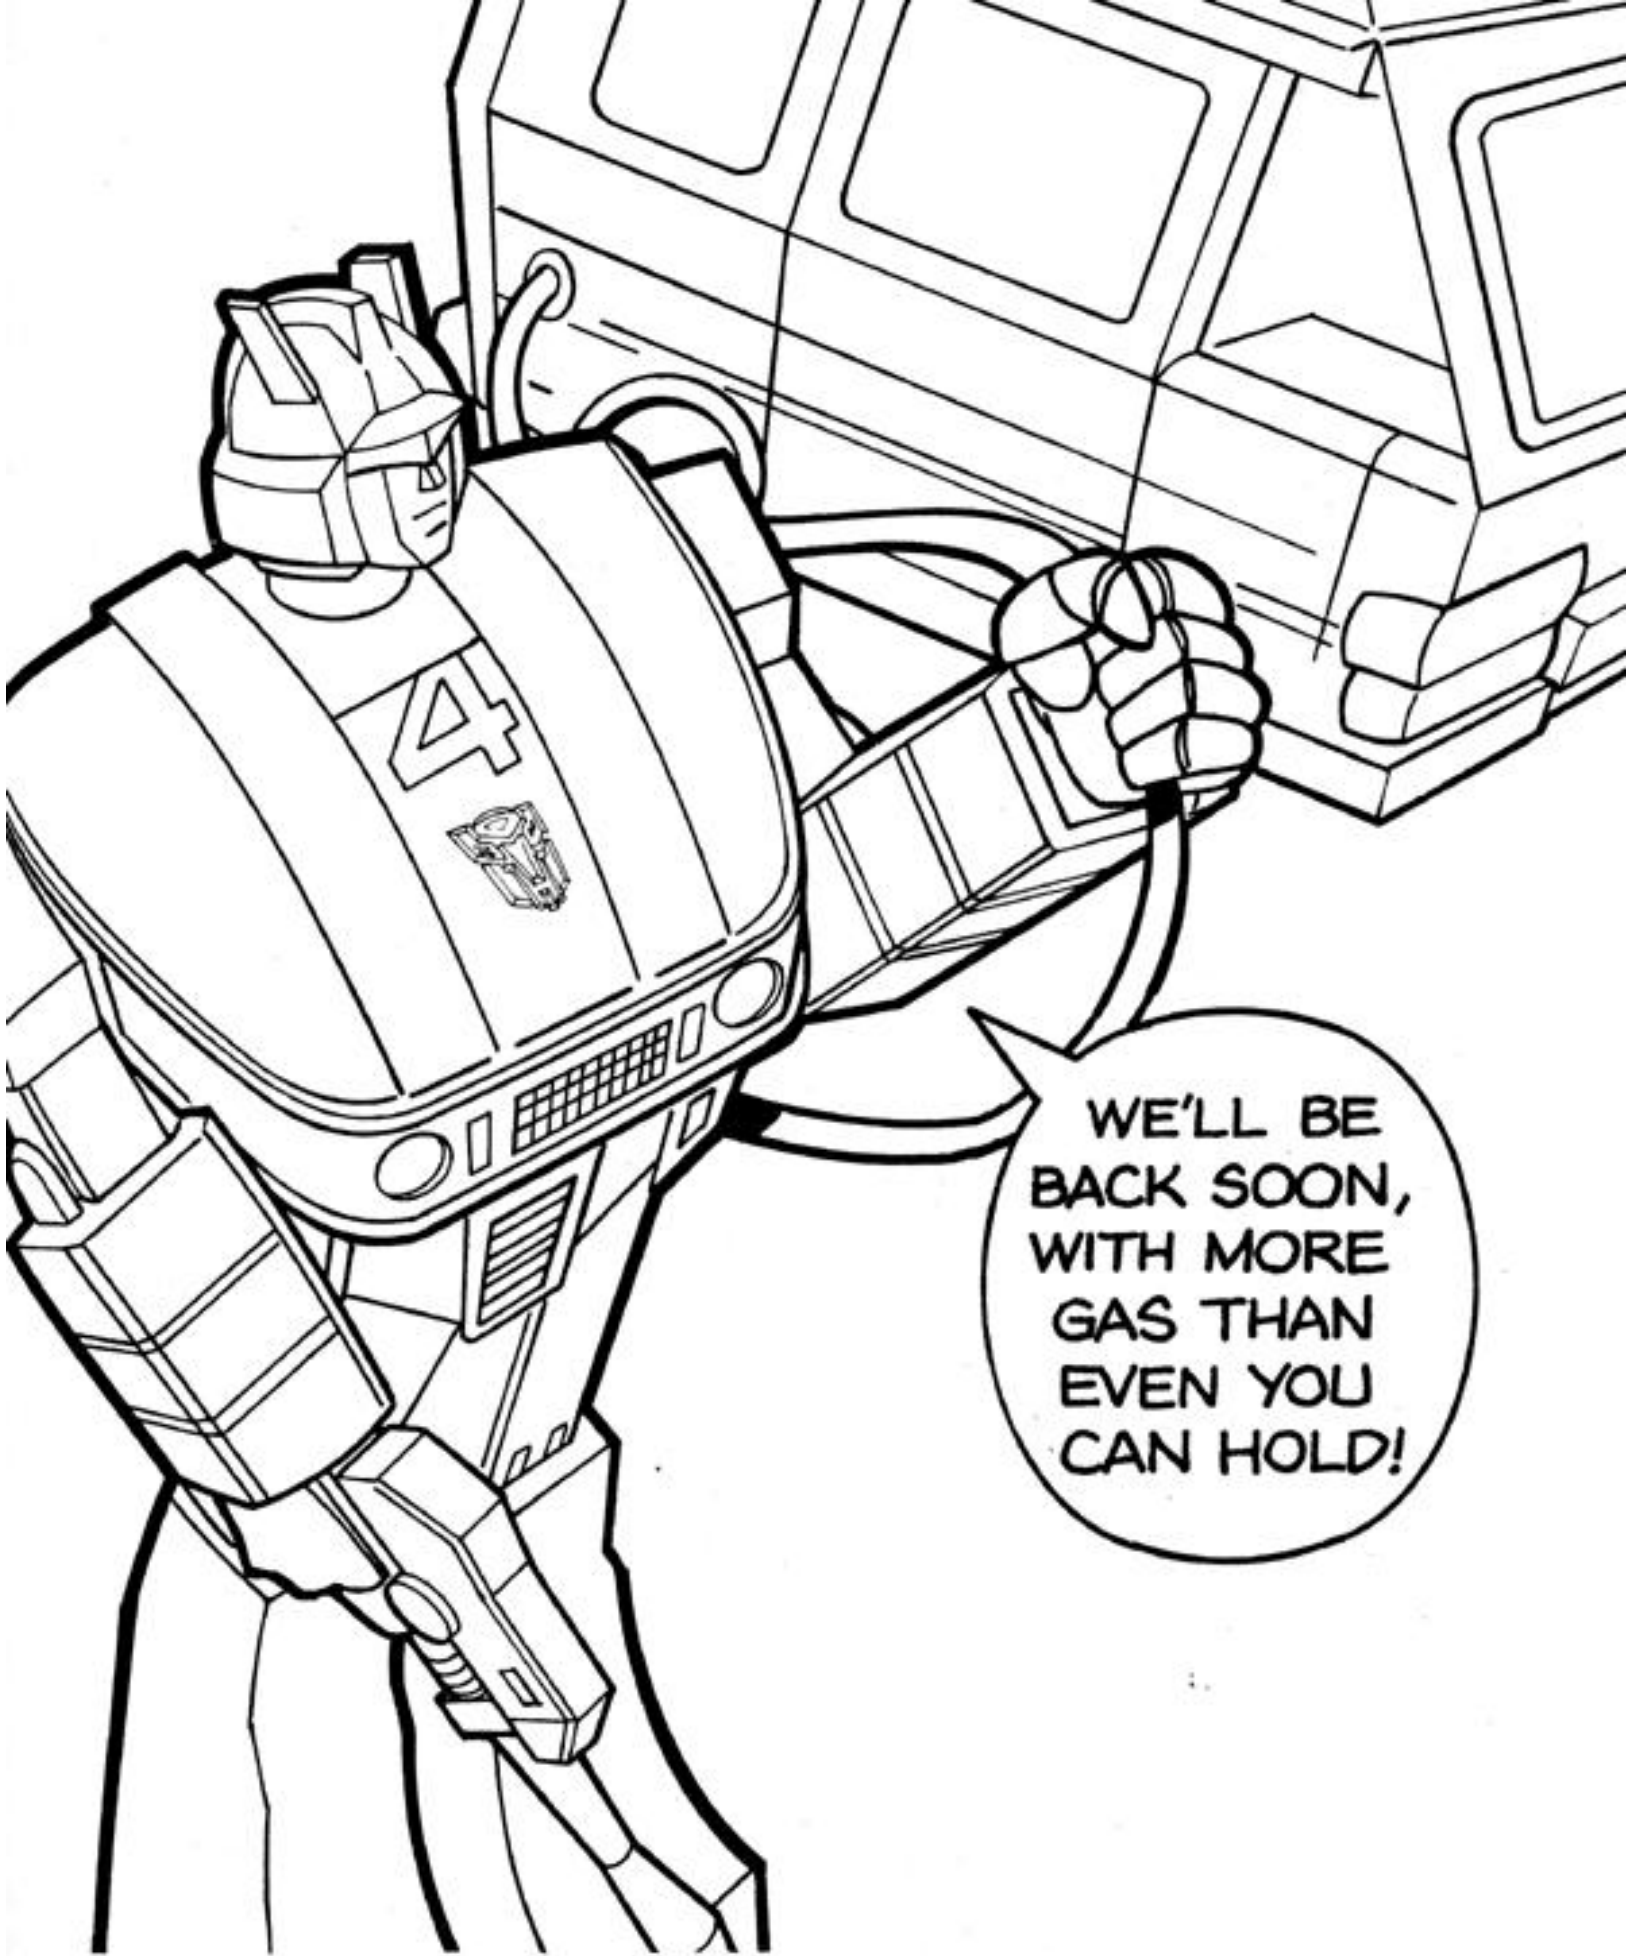

"Who needs a door?" Huffer asks.

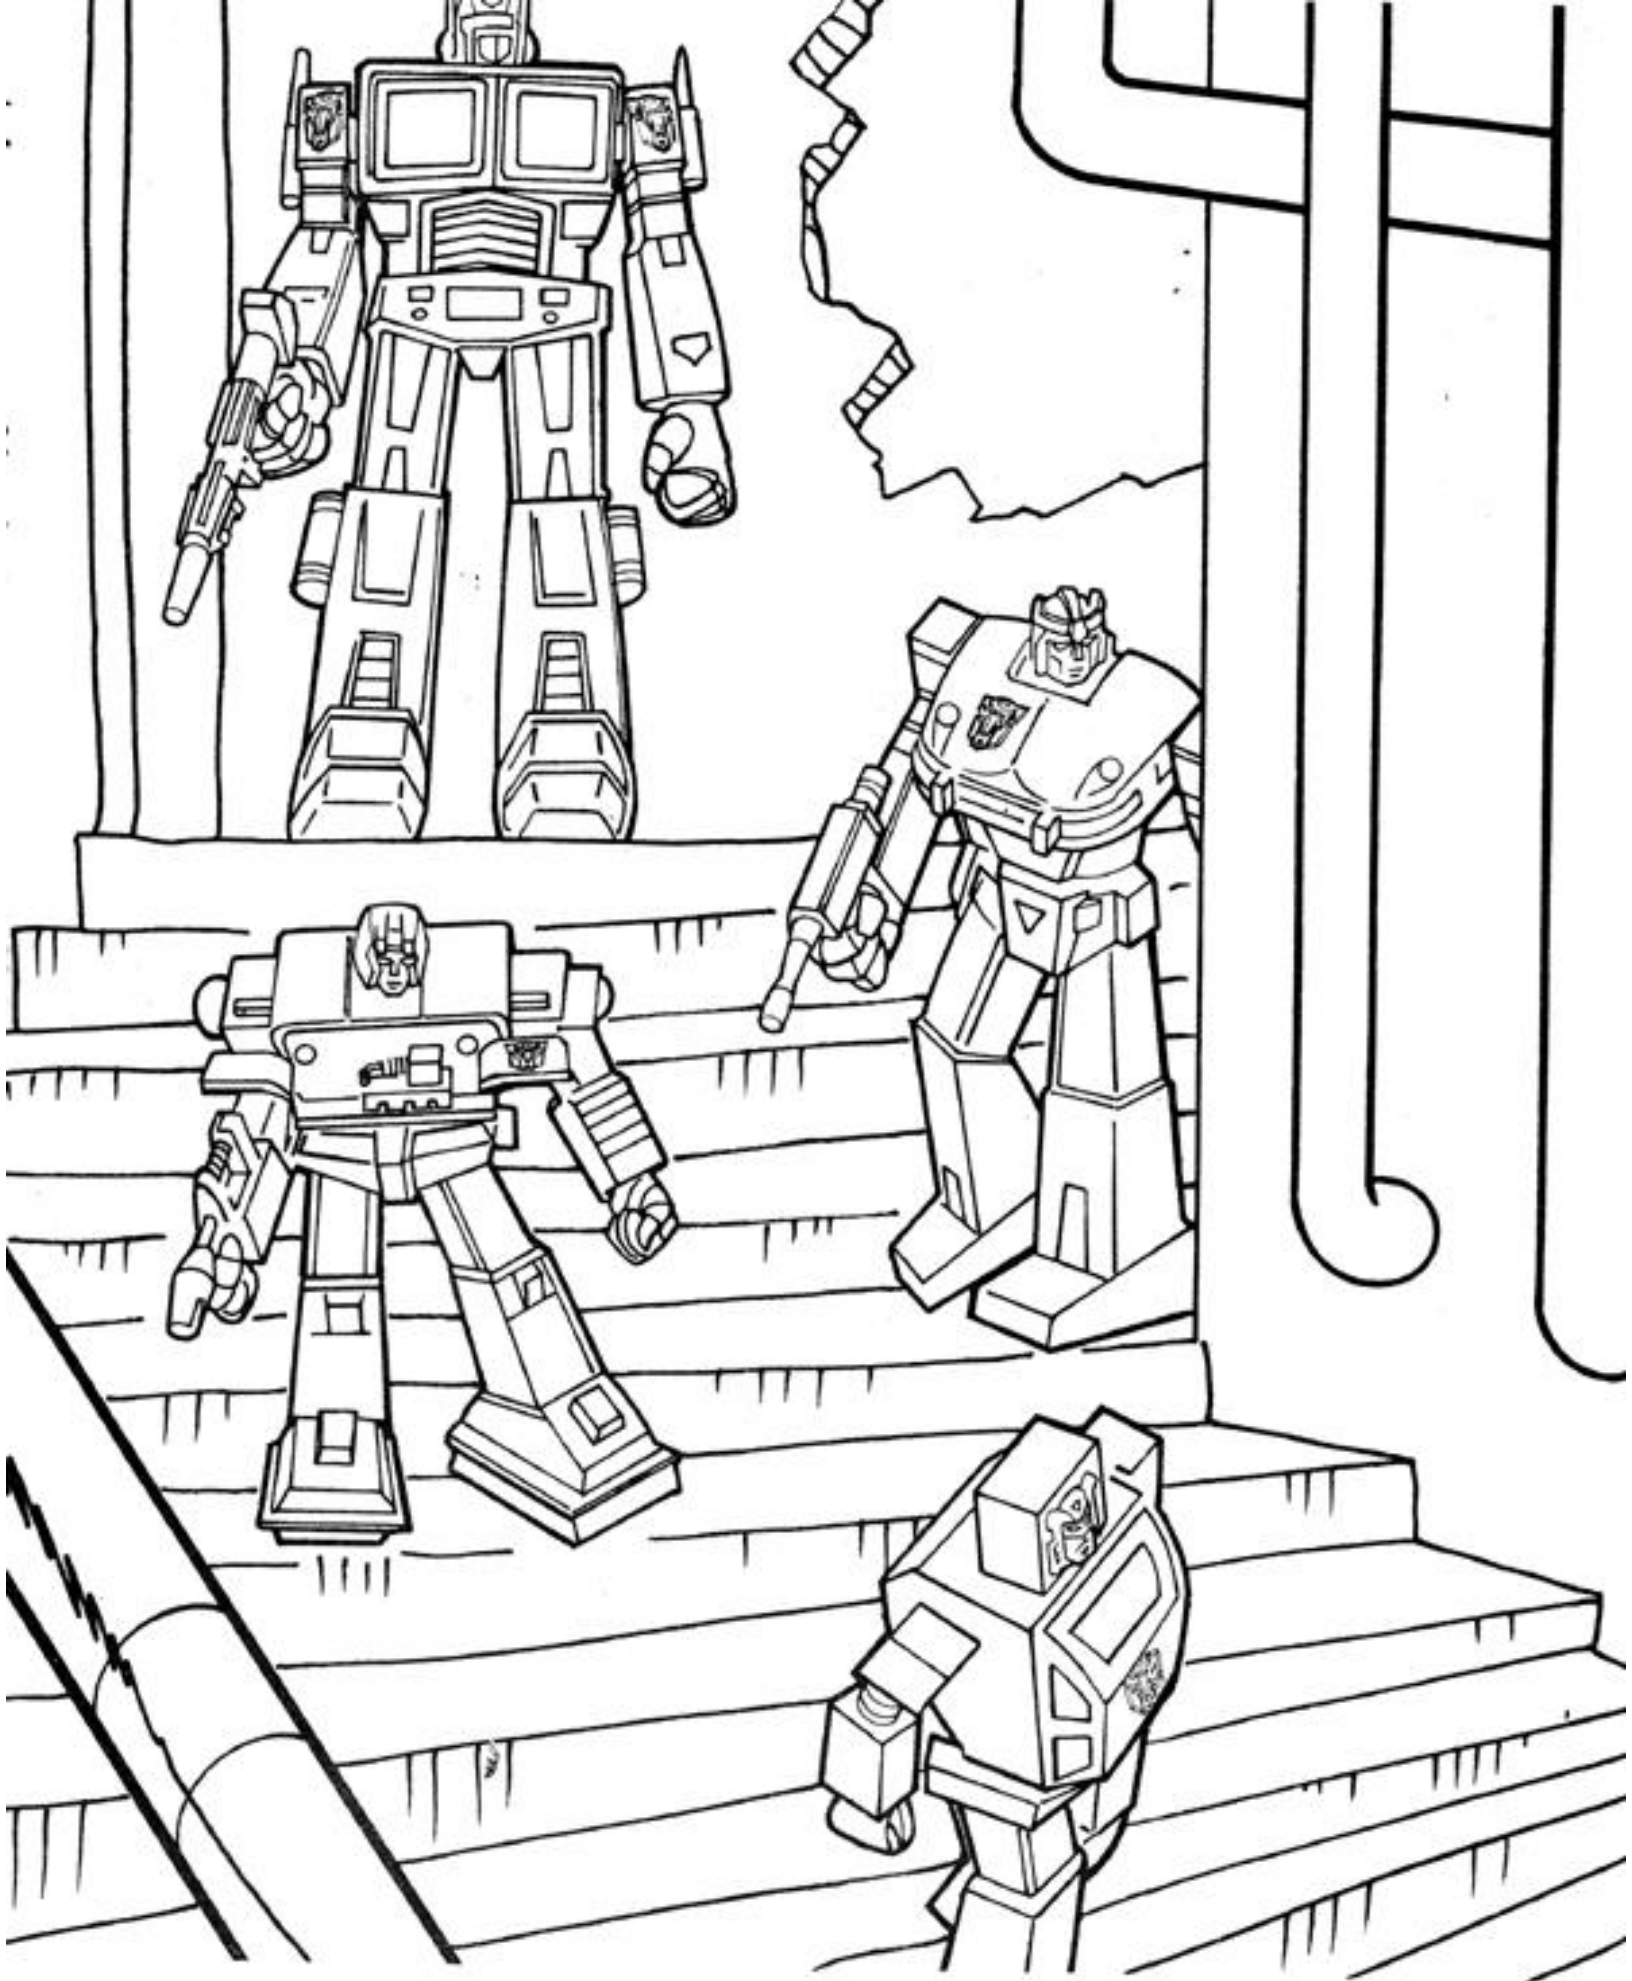

While the battle rages, Ratchet makes emergency repairs. "I'm worried," he tells Optimus. "We're all running low on gas—and the Decepticons aren't!"

The Autobots pool their resources. "I use the most fuel, and I'm the slowest Autobot here," Ironhide says. "Take what you need."

"Right now," Jazz says gratefully, "you're the most valuable Autobot next to Optimus!" With the last of his strength, Ironhide beams proudly.

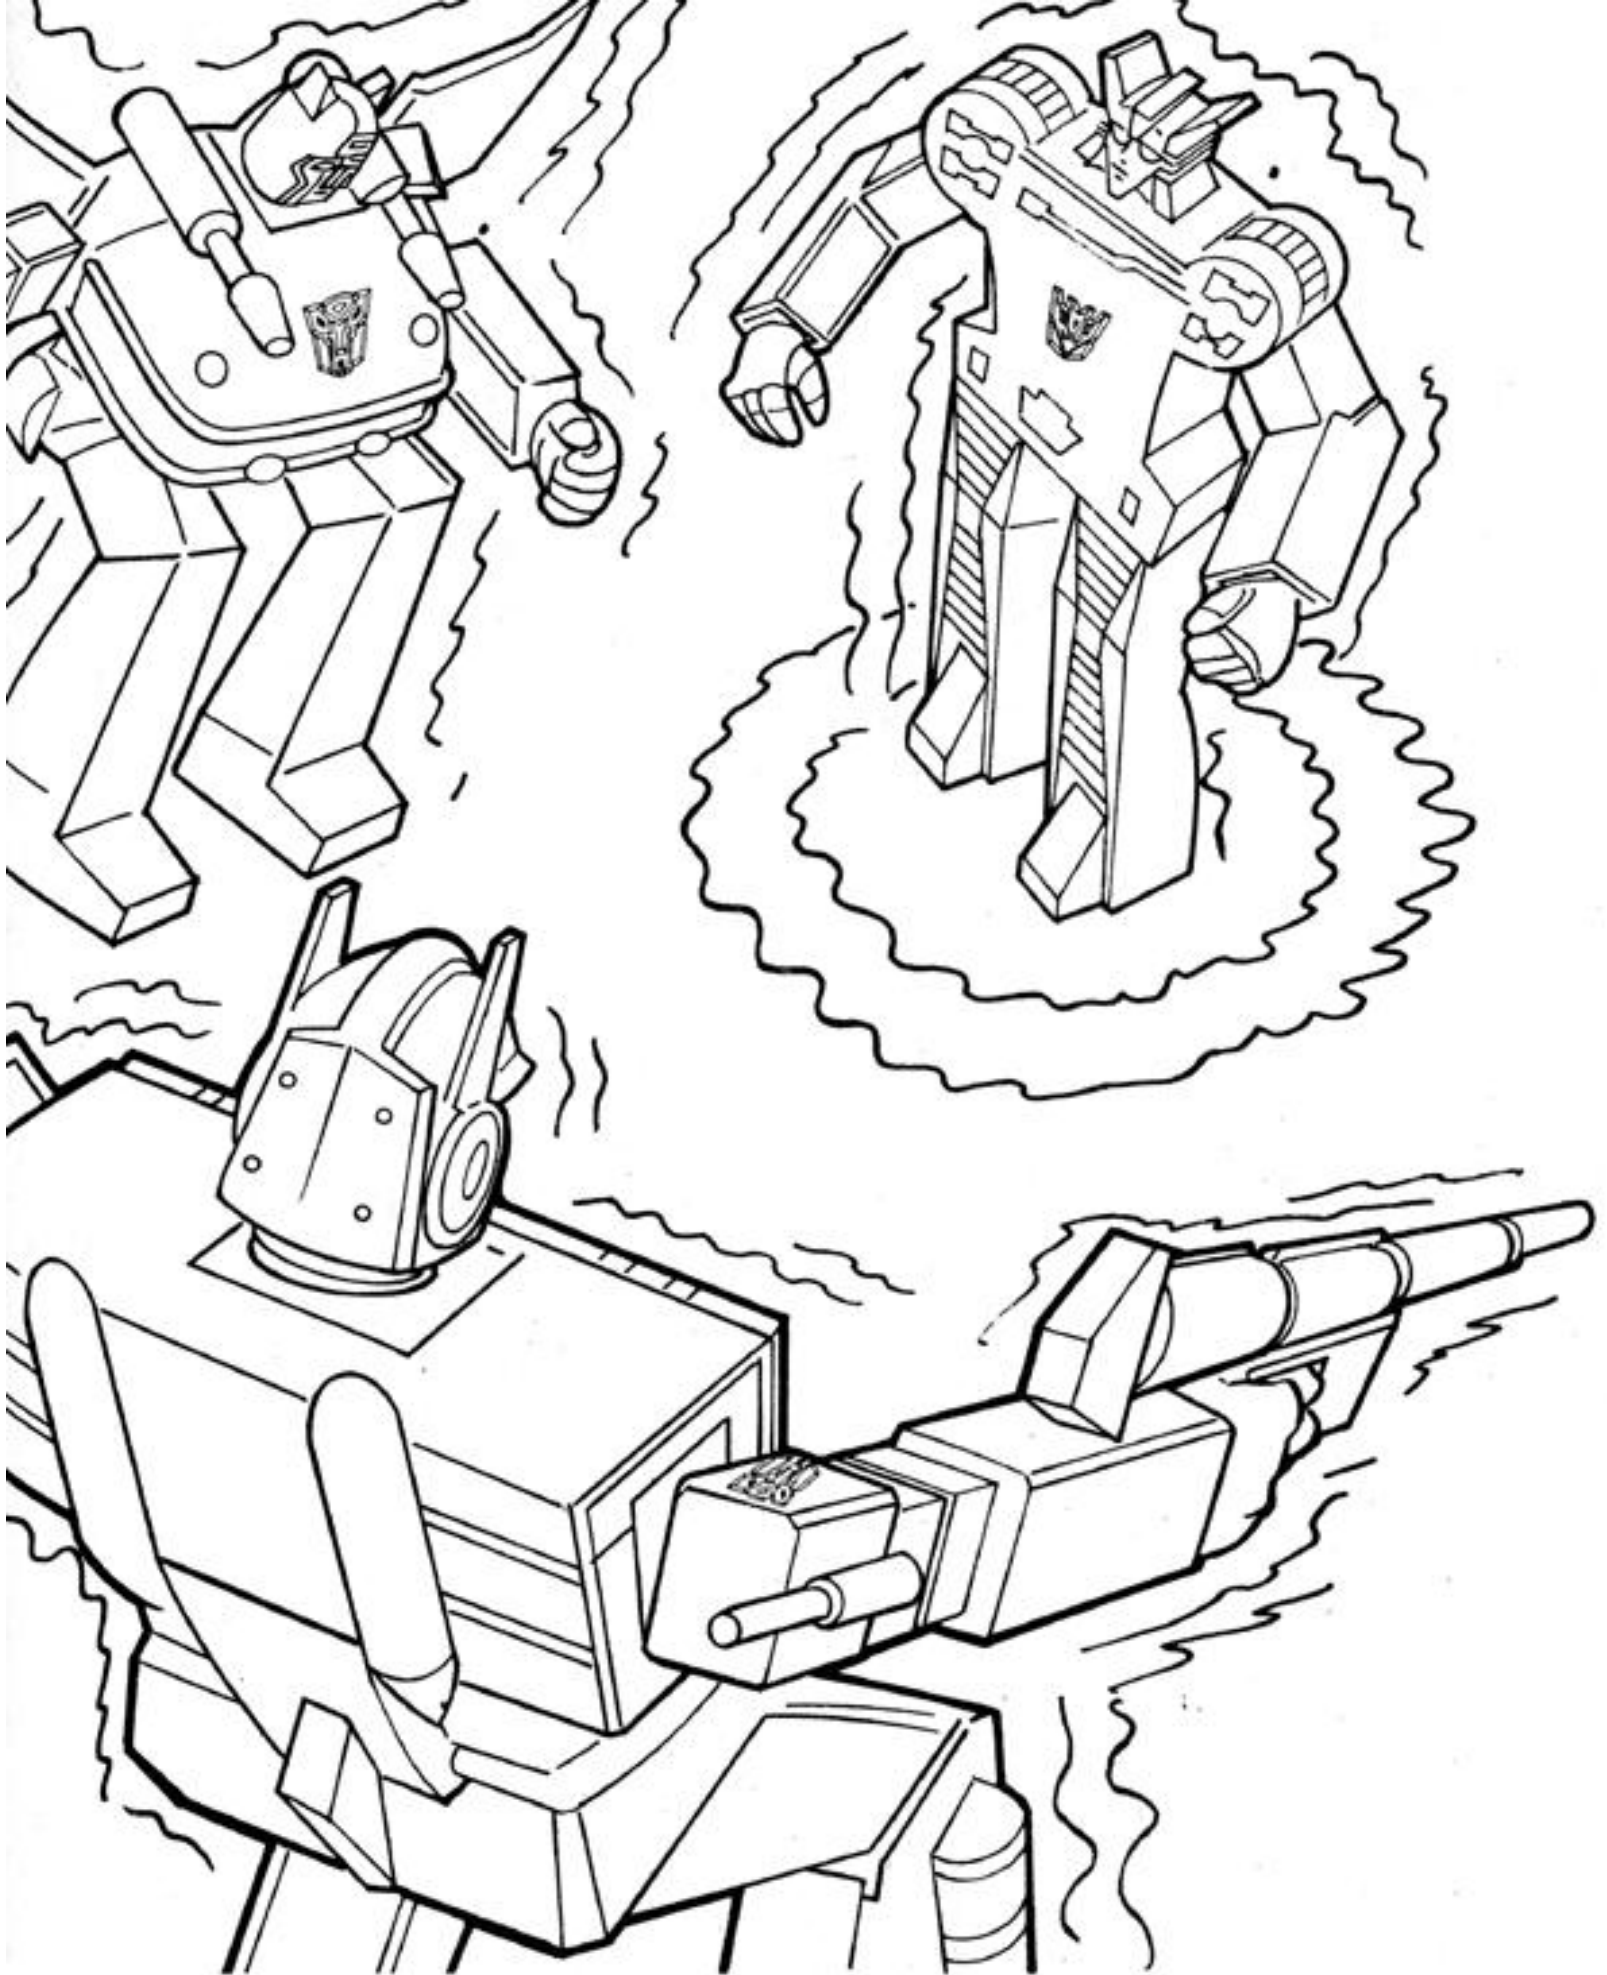

Optimus, Mirage, Hound, Jazz, and Bumblebee enter the Decepticon stronghold.

Hound tracks the Decepticon's molecular transfer device—but the Autobots run into trouble.

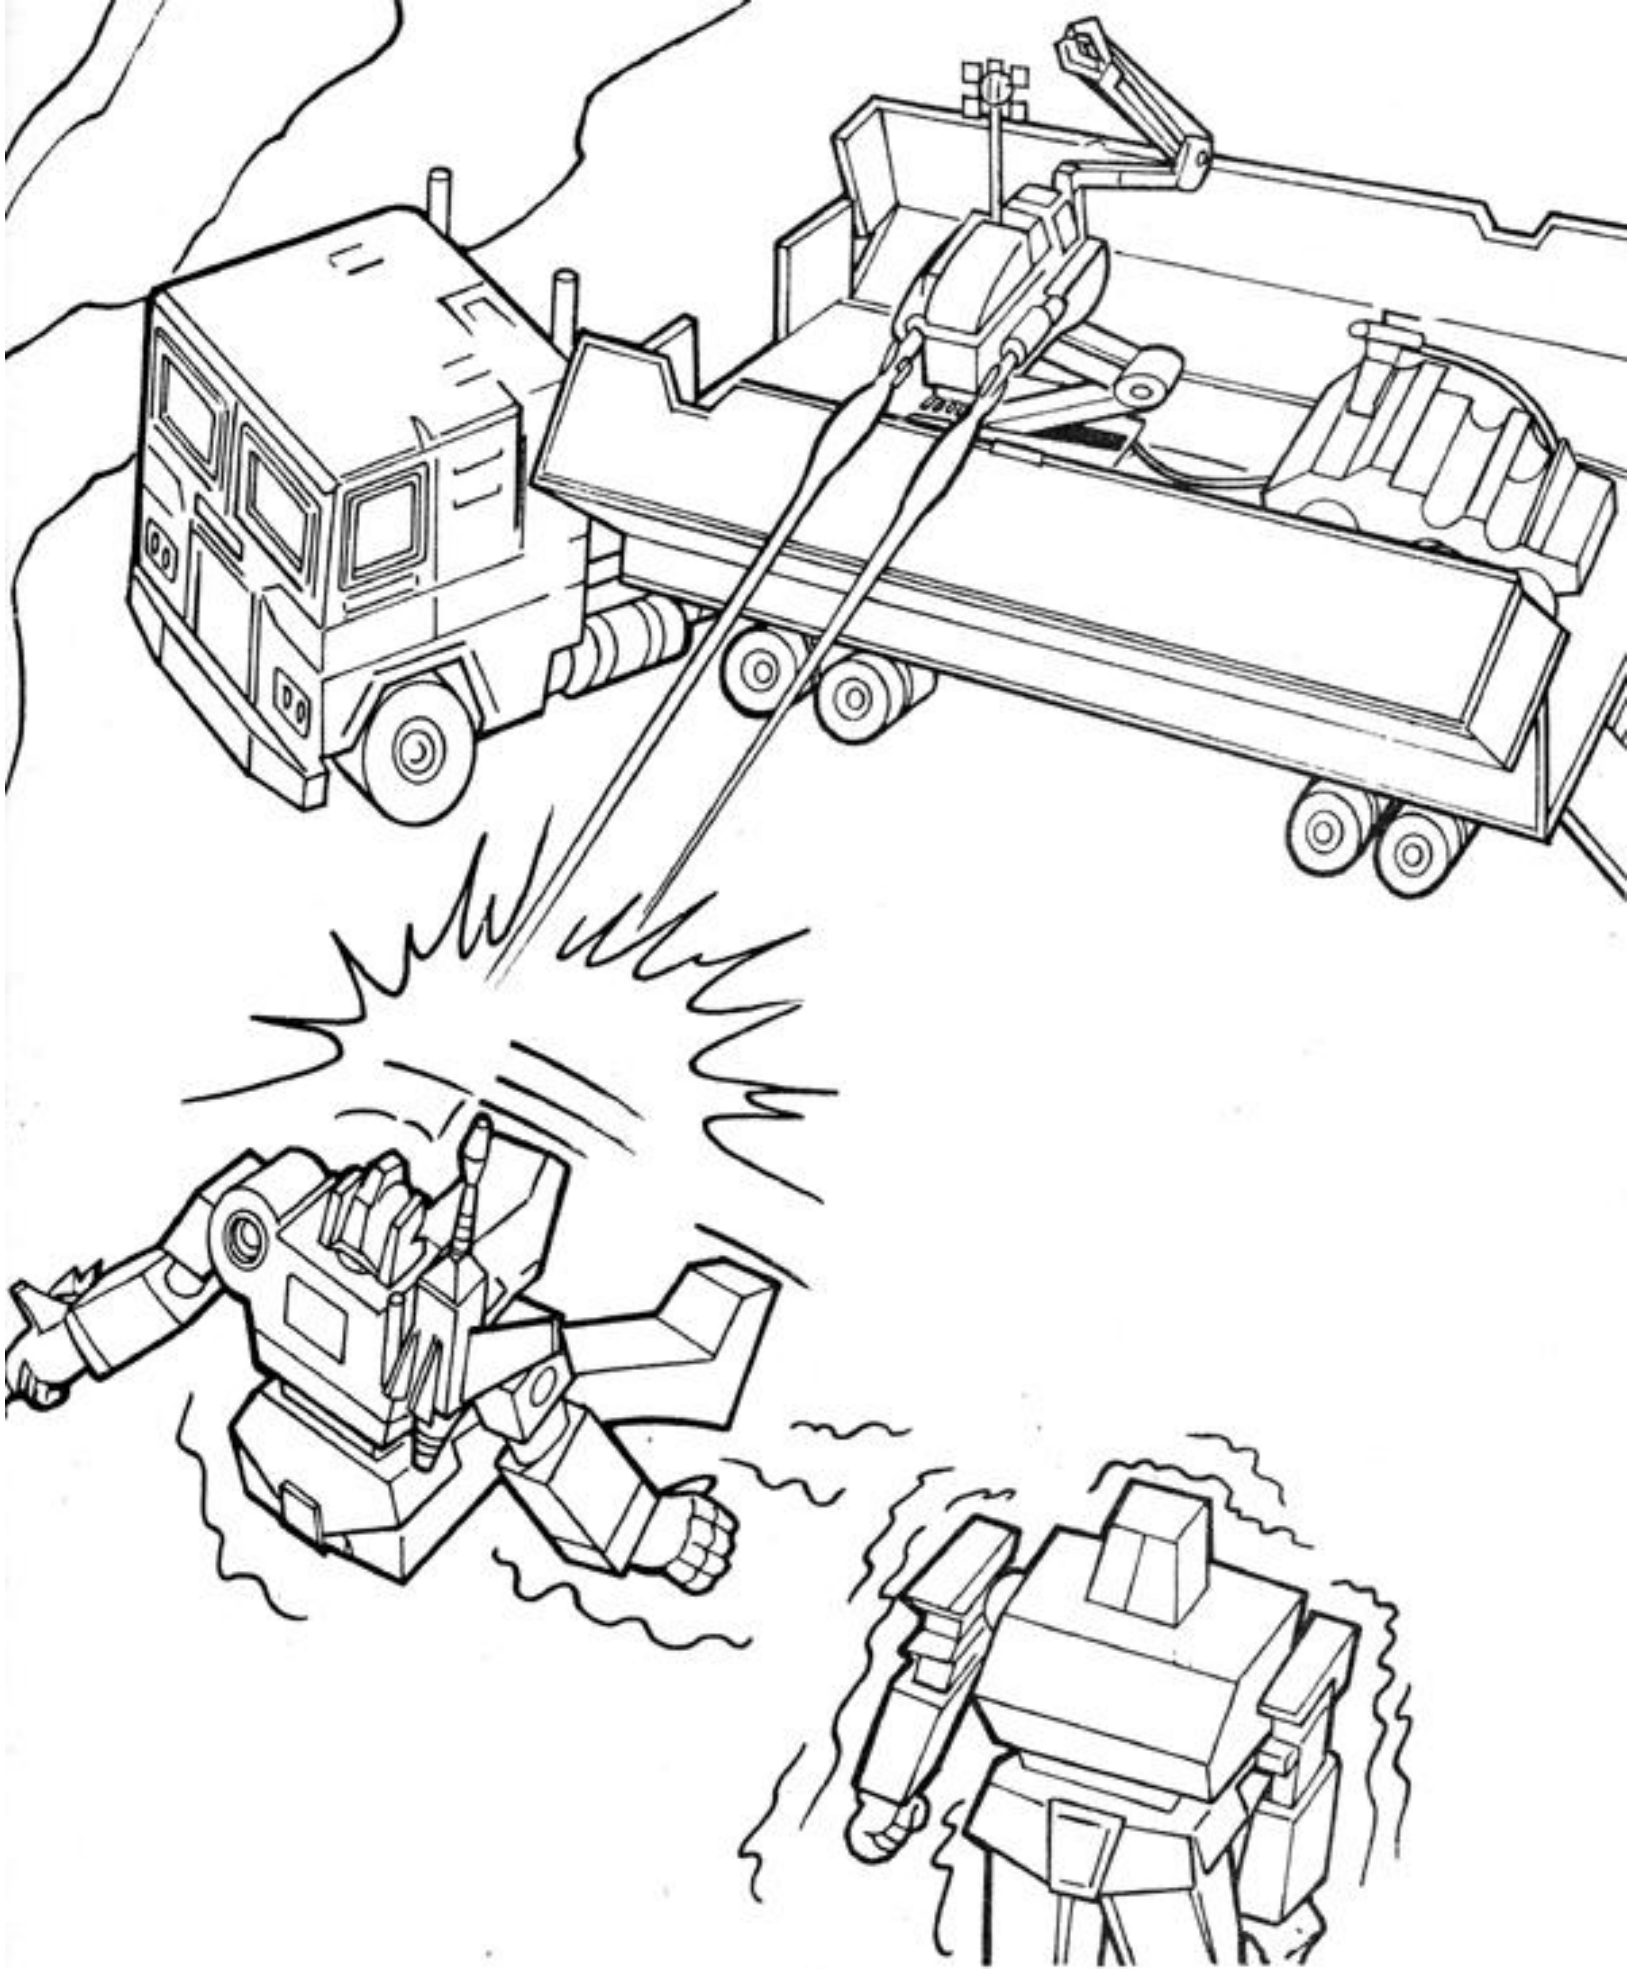

Decepticons appear as if from nowhere, to defend their gas-stealing device!

Jazz dazzles the Decepticons with a brilliant display of blinding lights.

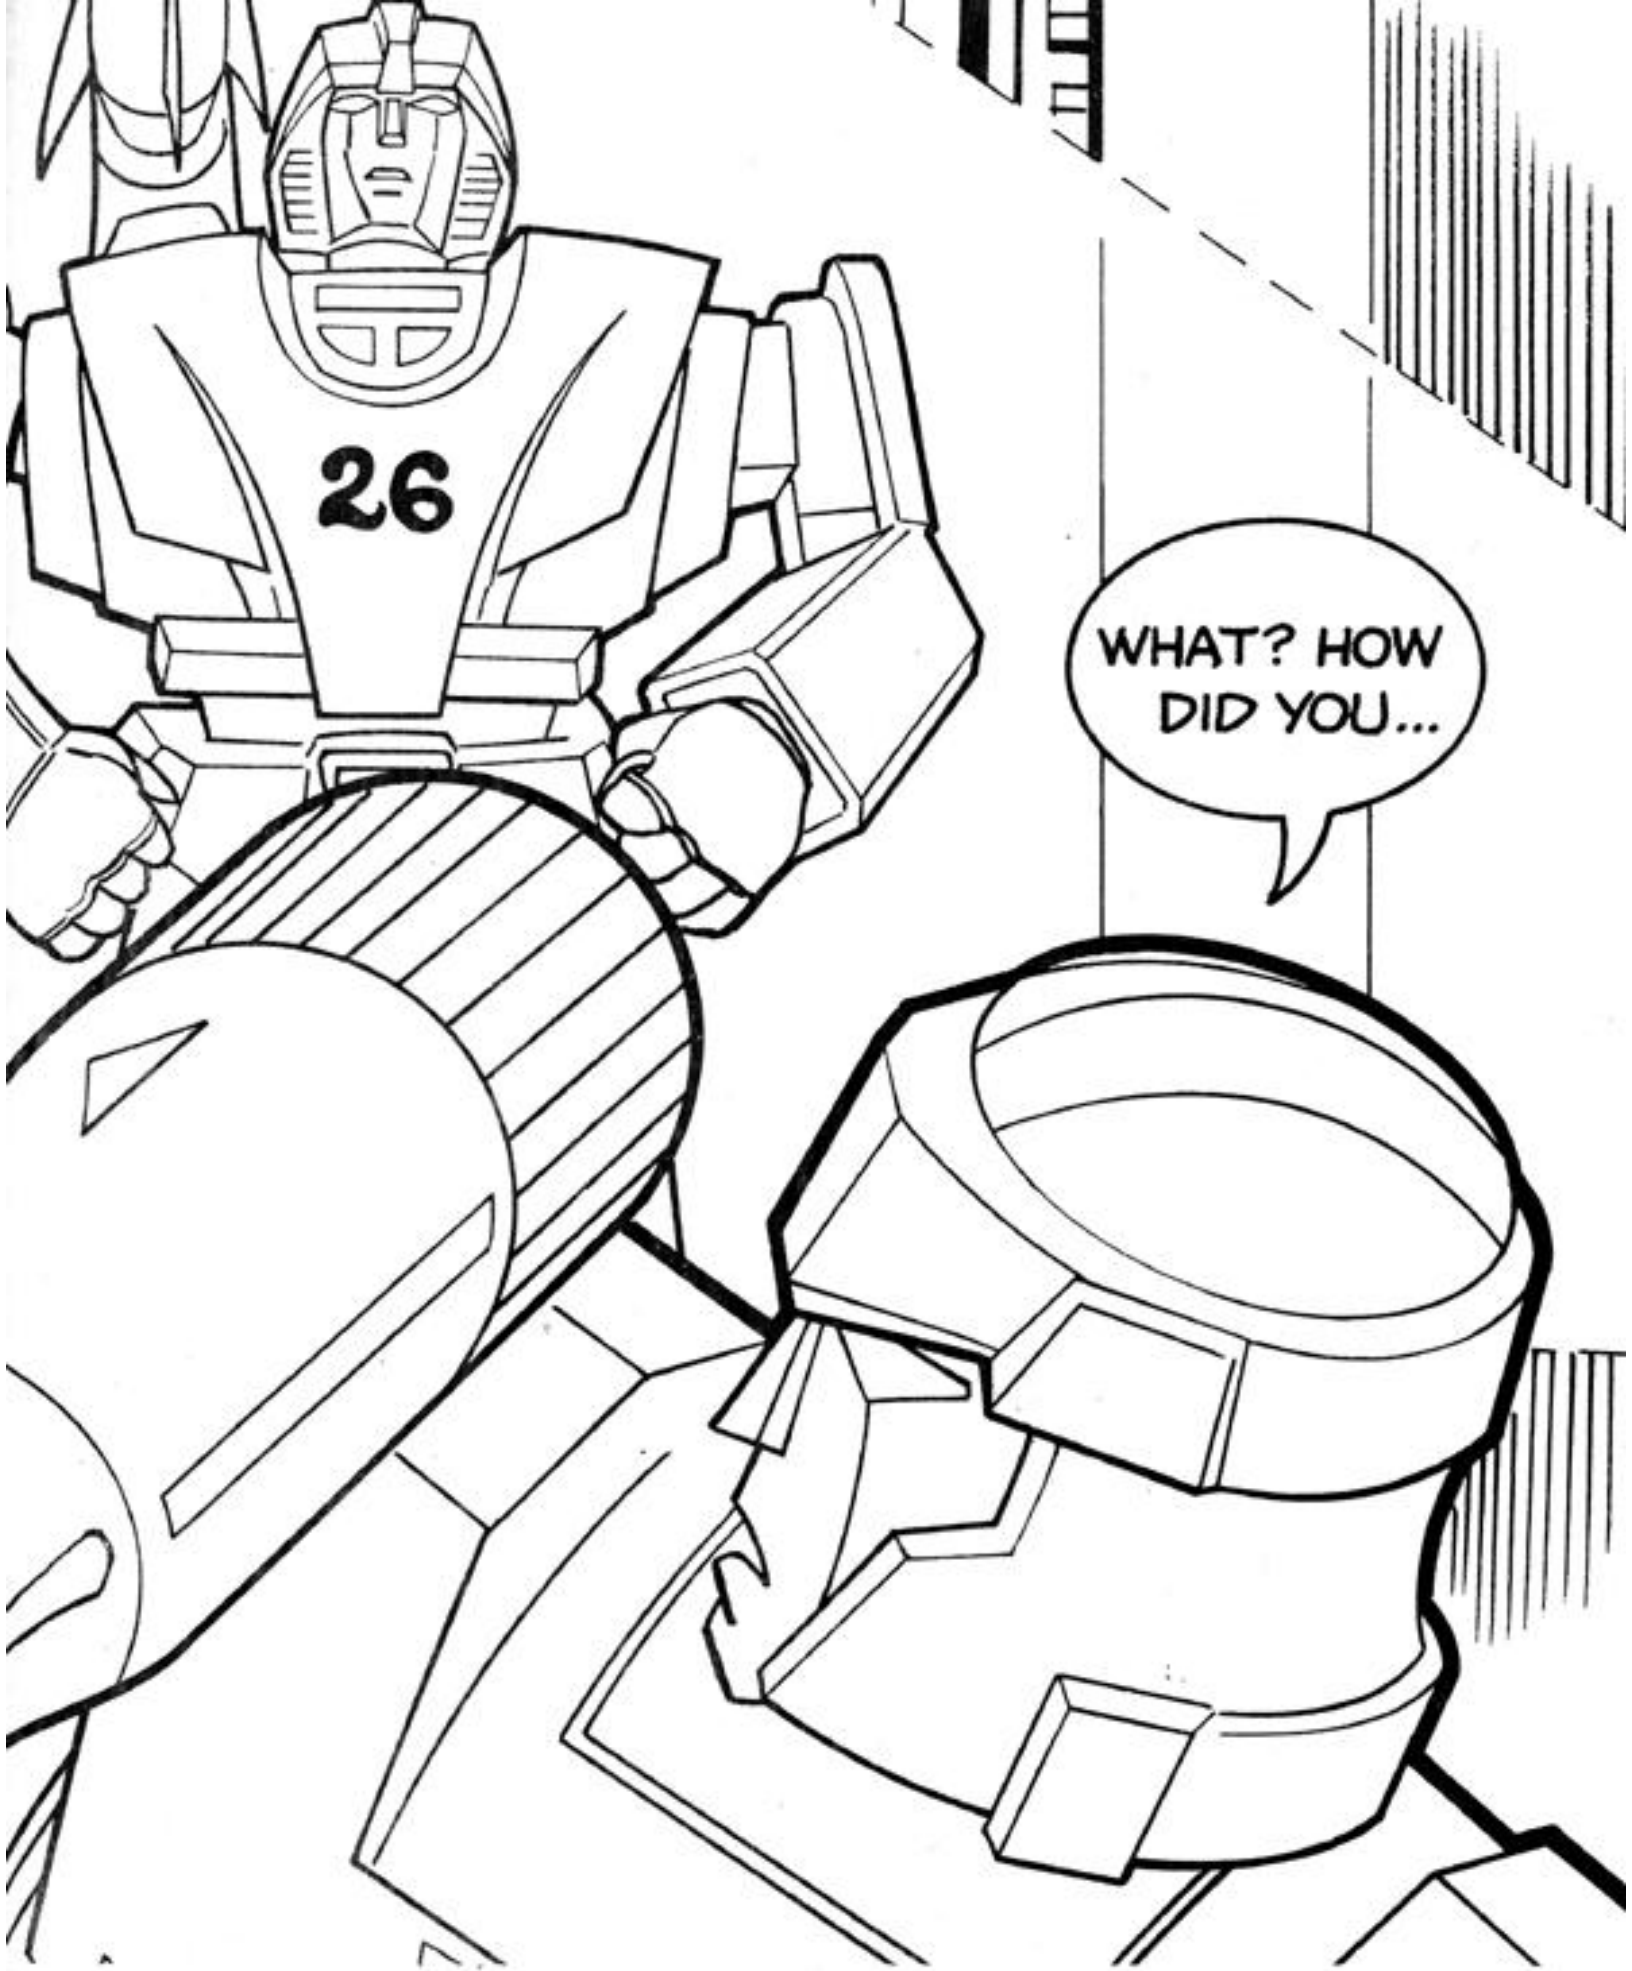

Decepticon Rumble uses his power to make the ground shake.

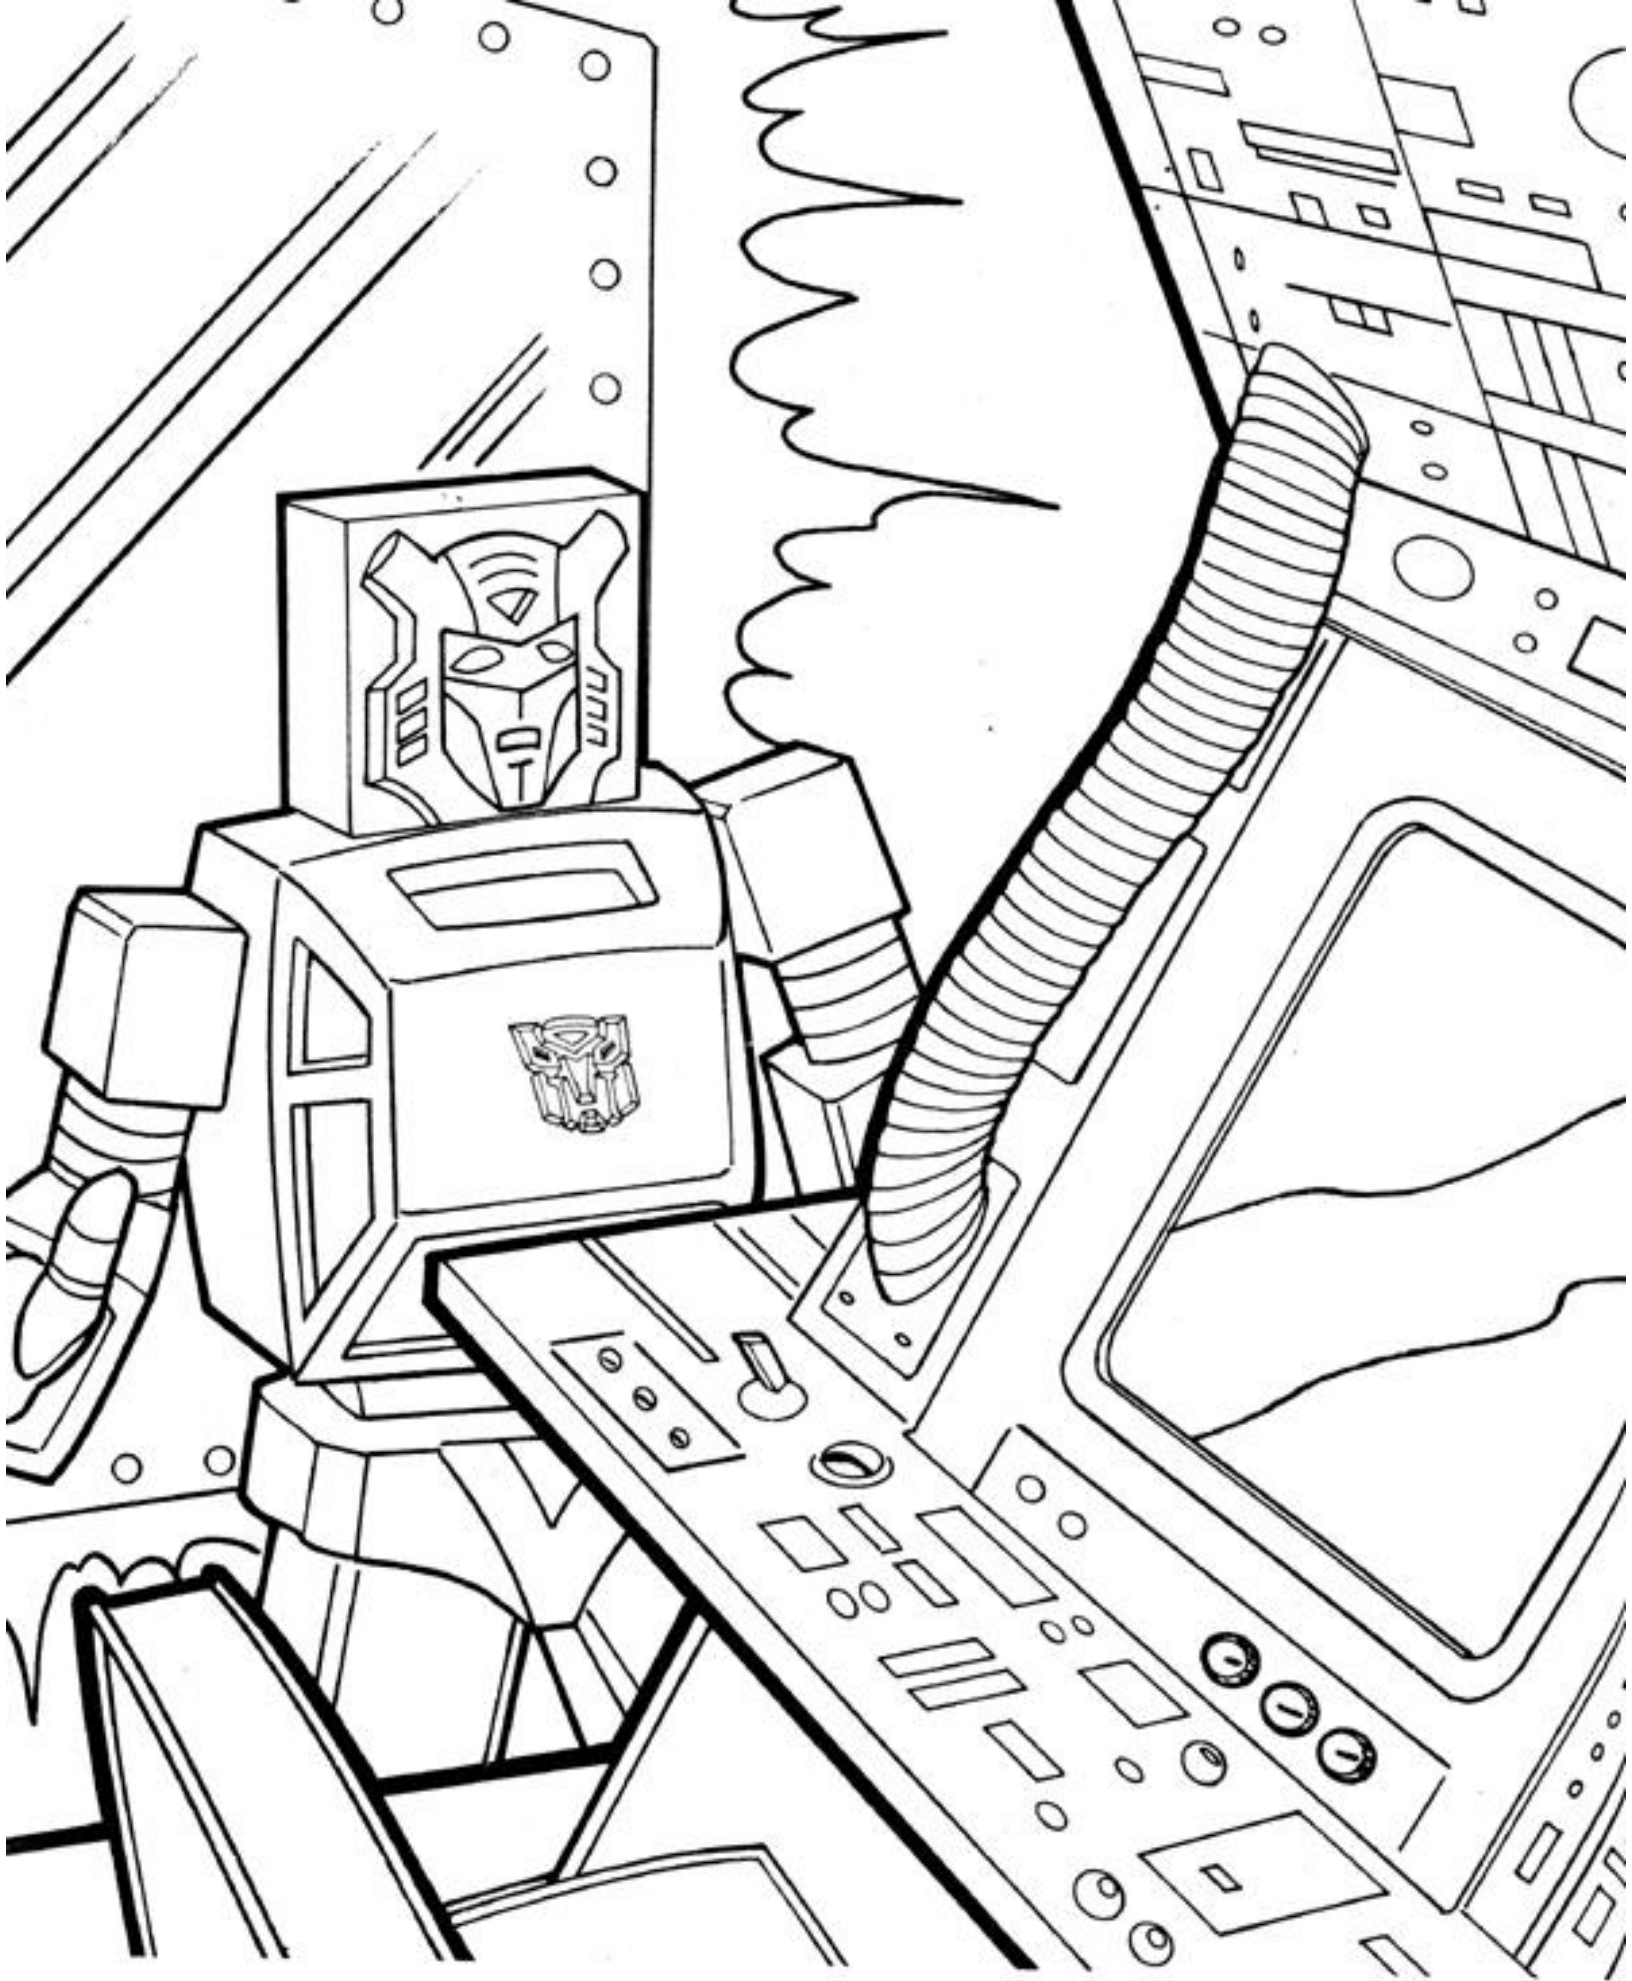

Optimus splits into his independent modules. Combat Deck's artillery stops Rumble's attacks.

Bumblebee gets to the door of the room where the Decepticons' device is kept—but runs into Megatron!

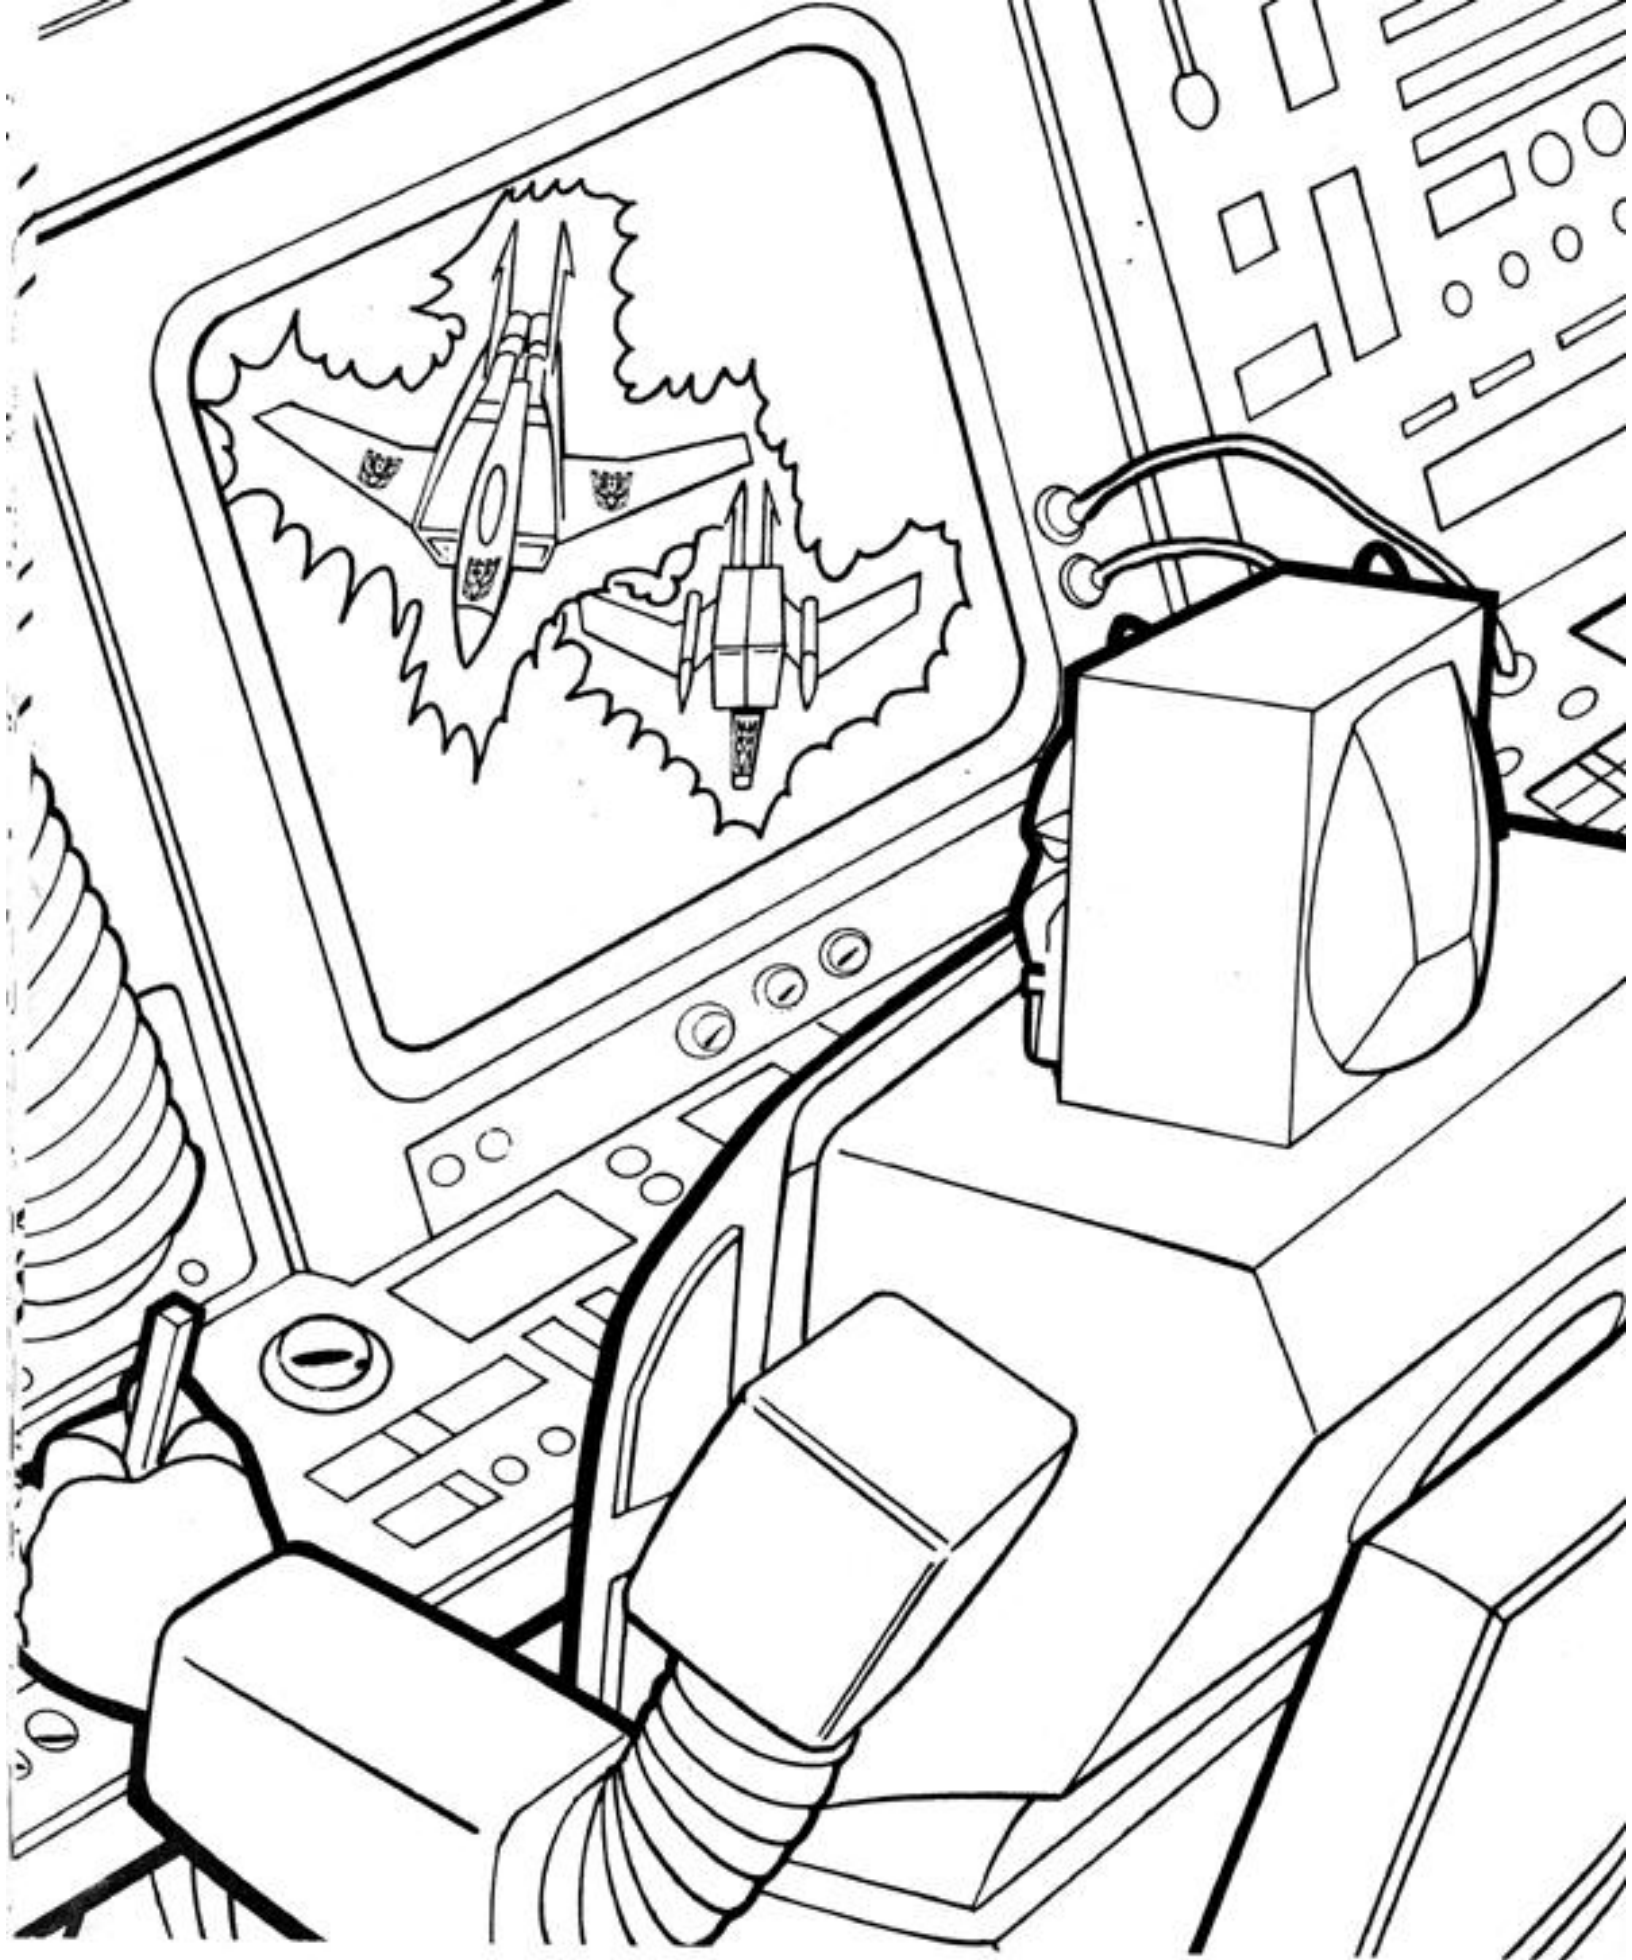

Mirage casts his image into the room behind Megatron. "What's new, Megatwerp?" the image asks.

Bumblebee slips around the distracted Megatron, into the room, and slams the door shut. But he is too small to smash the device!

The Decepticons are making things hard for the Autobots! Think, Bumblebee, think!

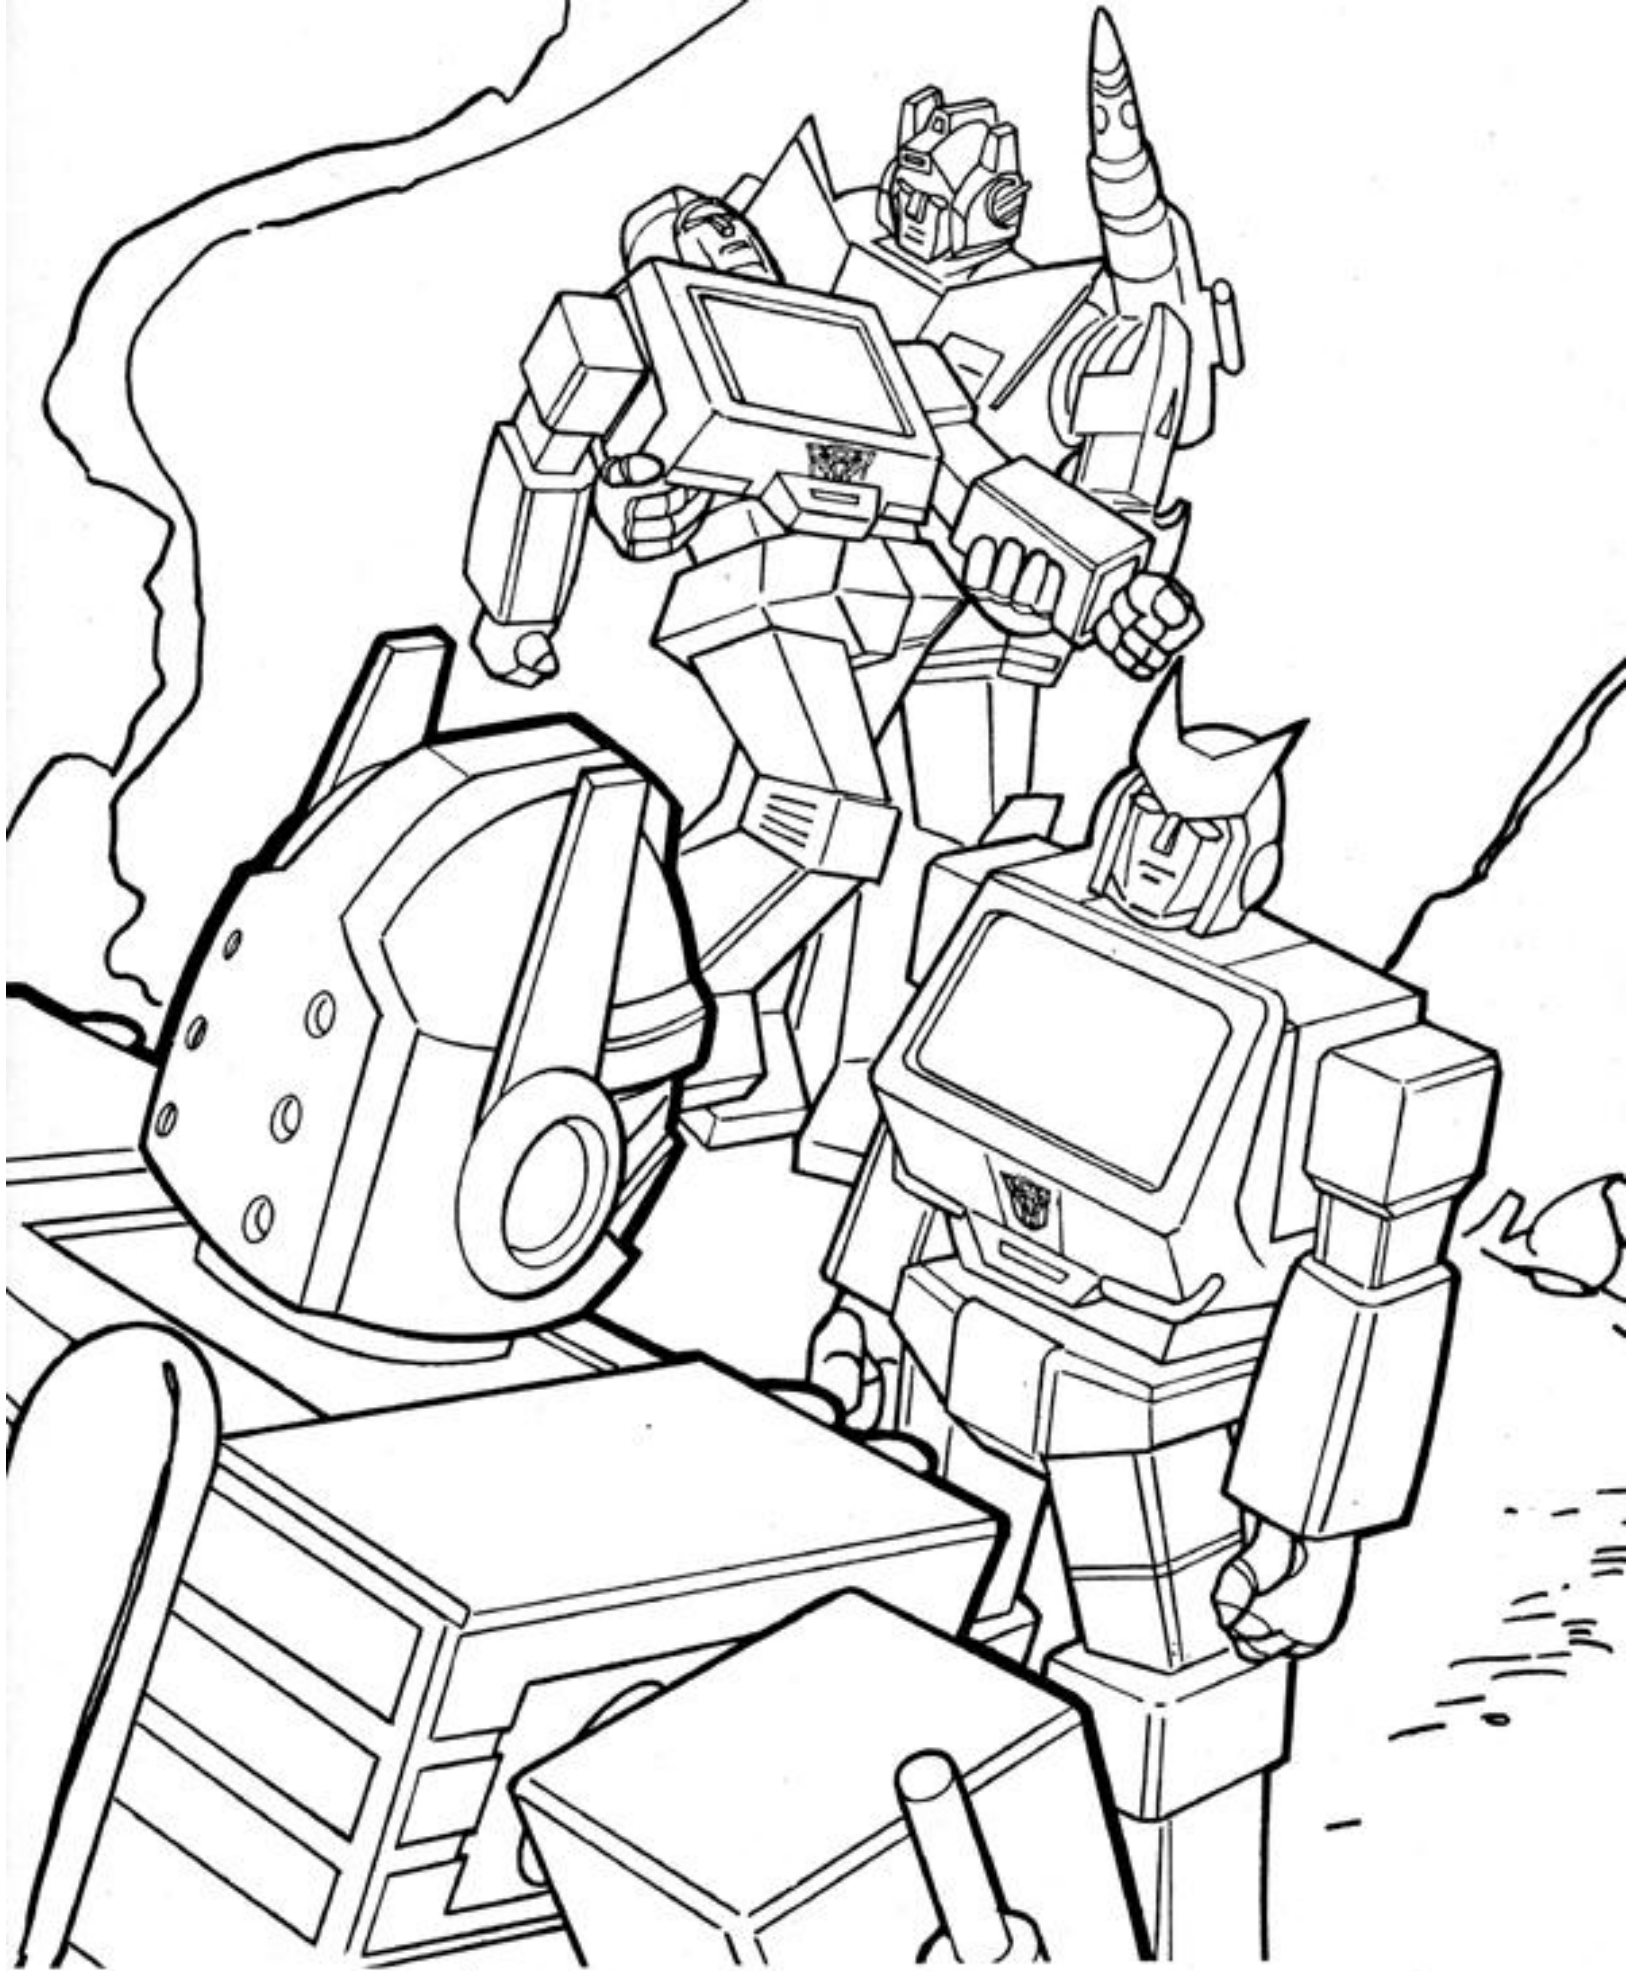

Bumblebee has a brilliant idea! He turns the molecular transfer device onto the Decepticons!

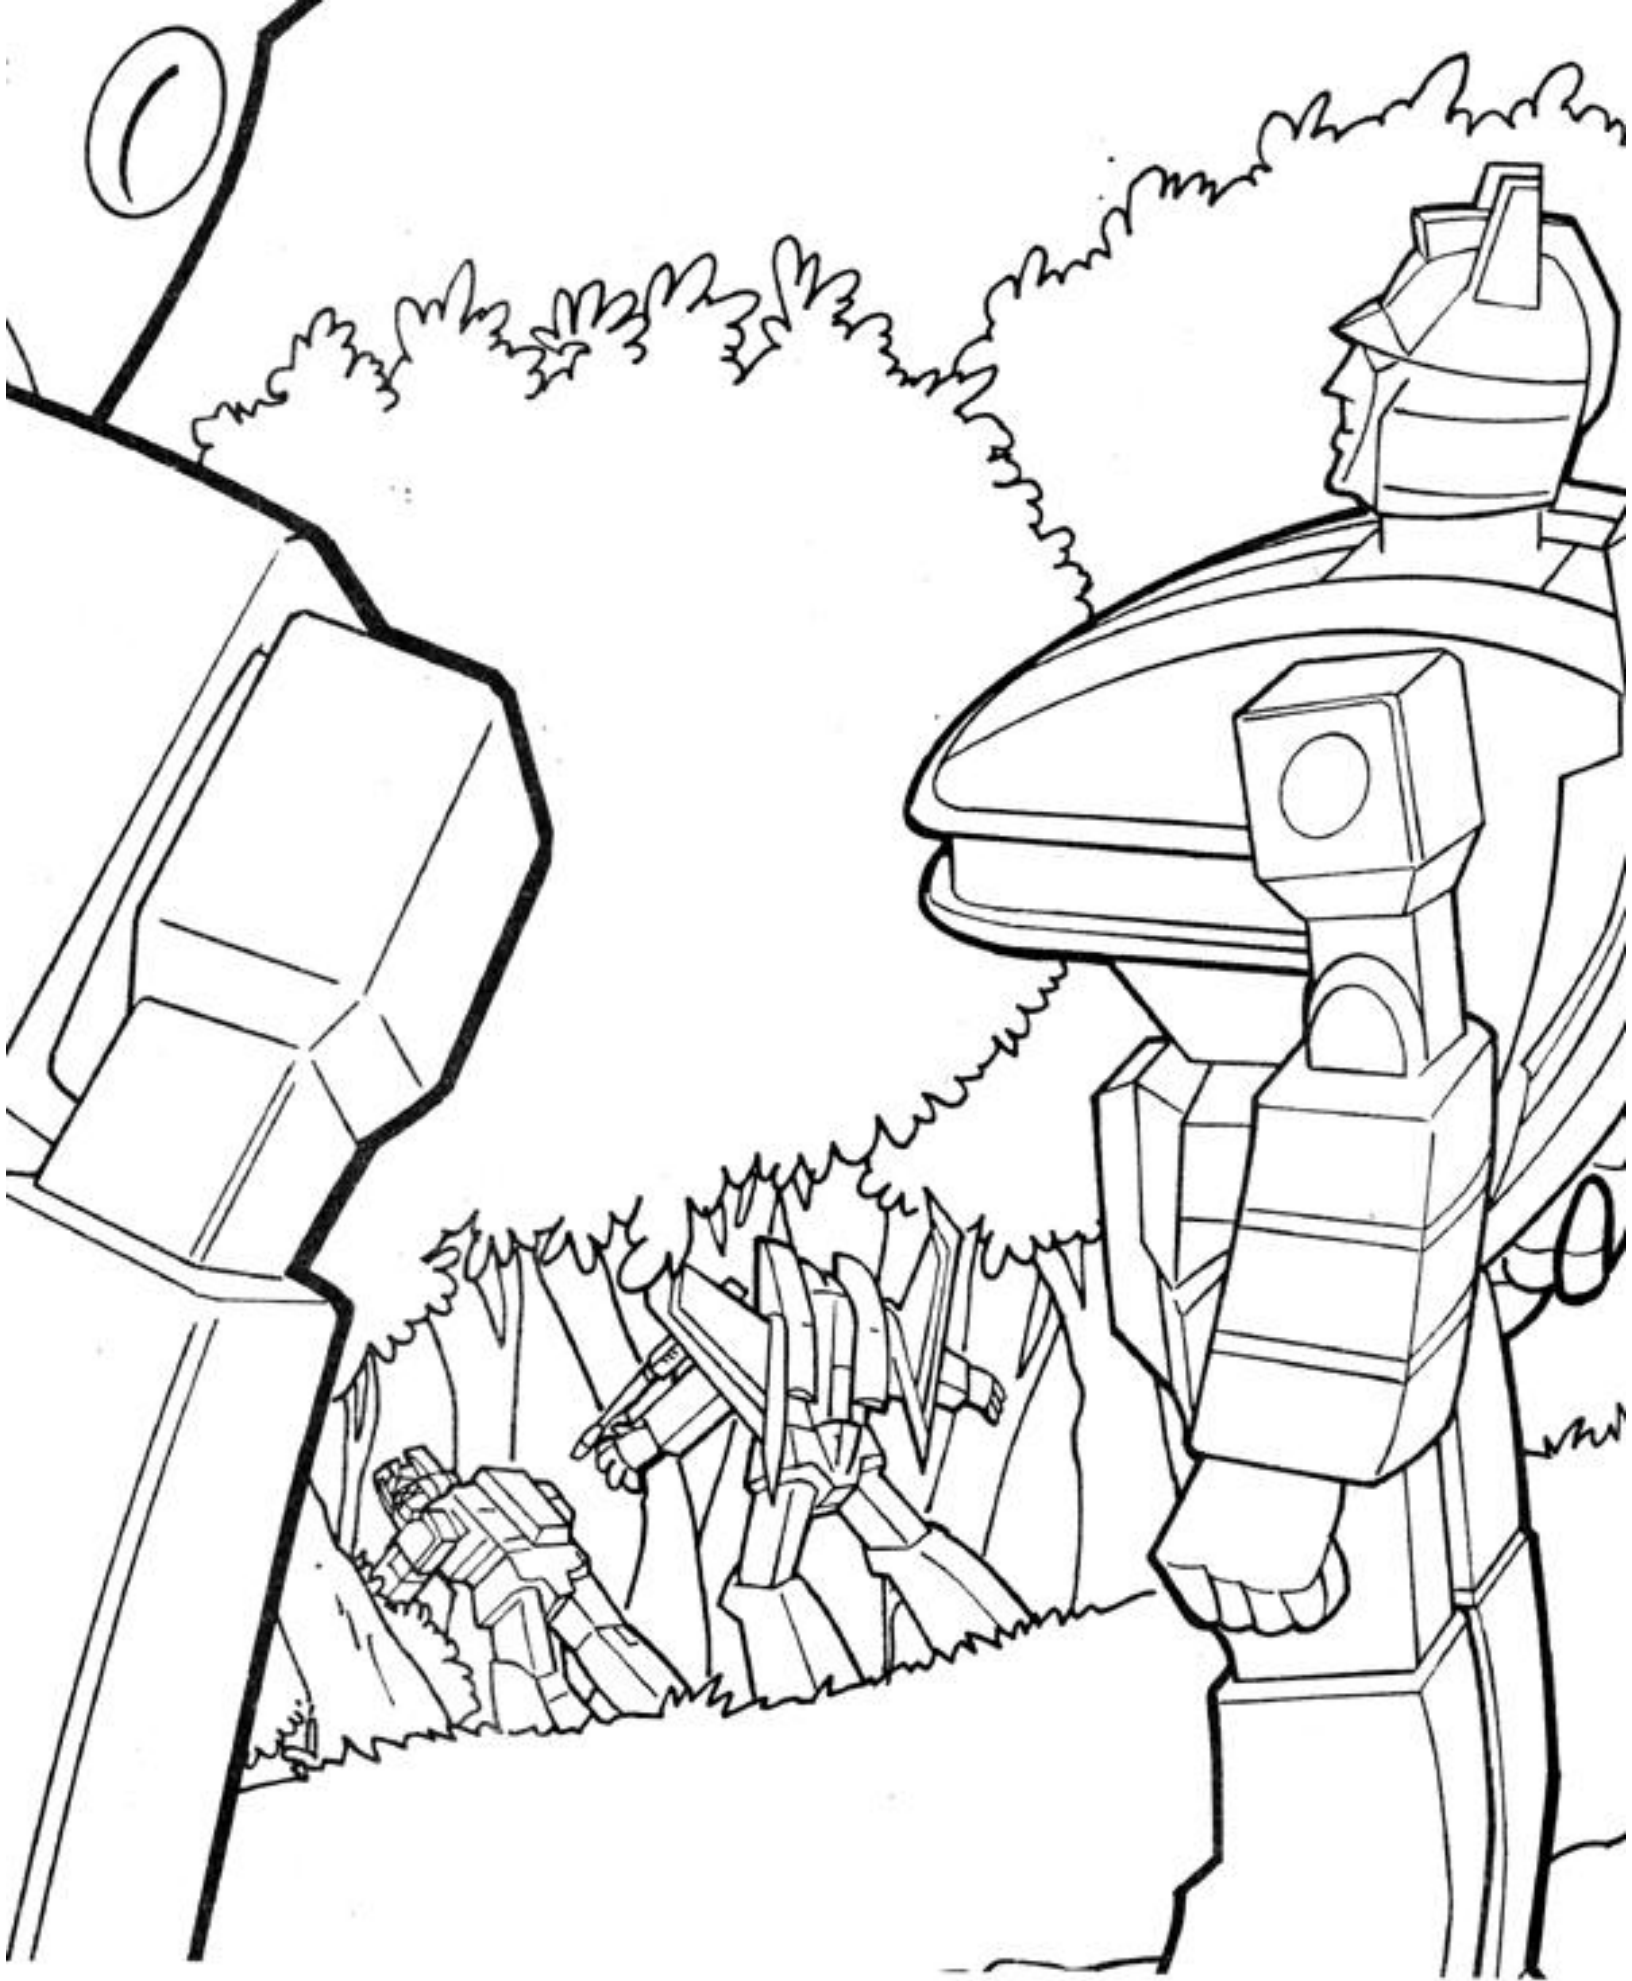

"The Decepticons are drained of power," Jazz whoops. "Bumblebee's saved us all!"

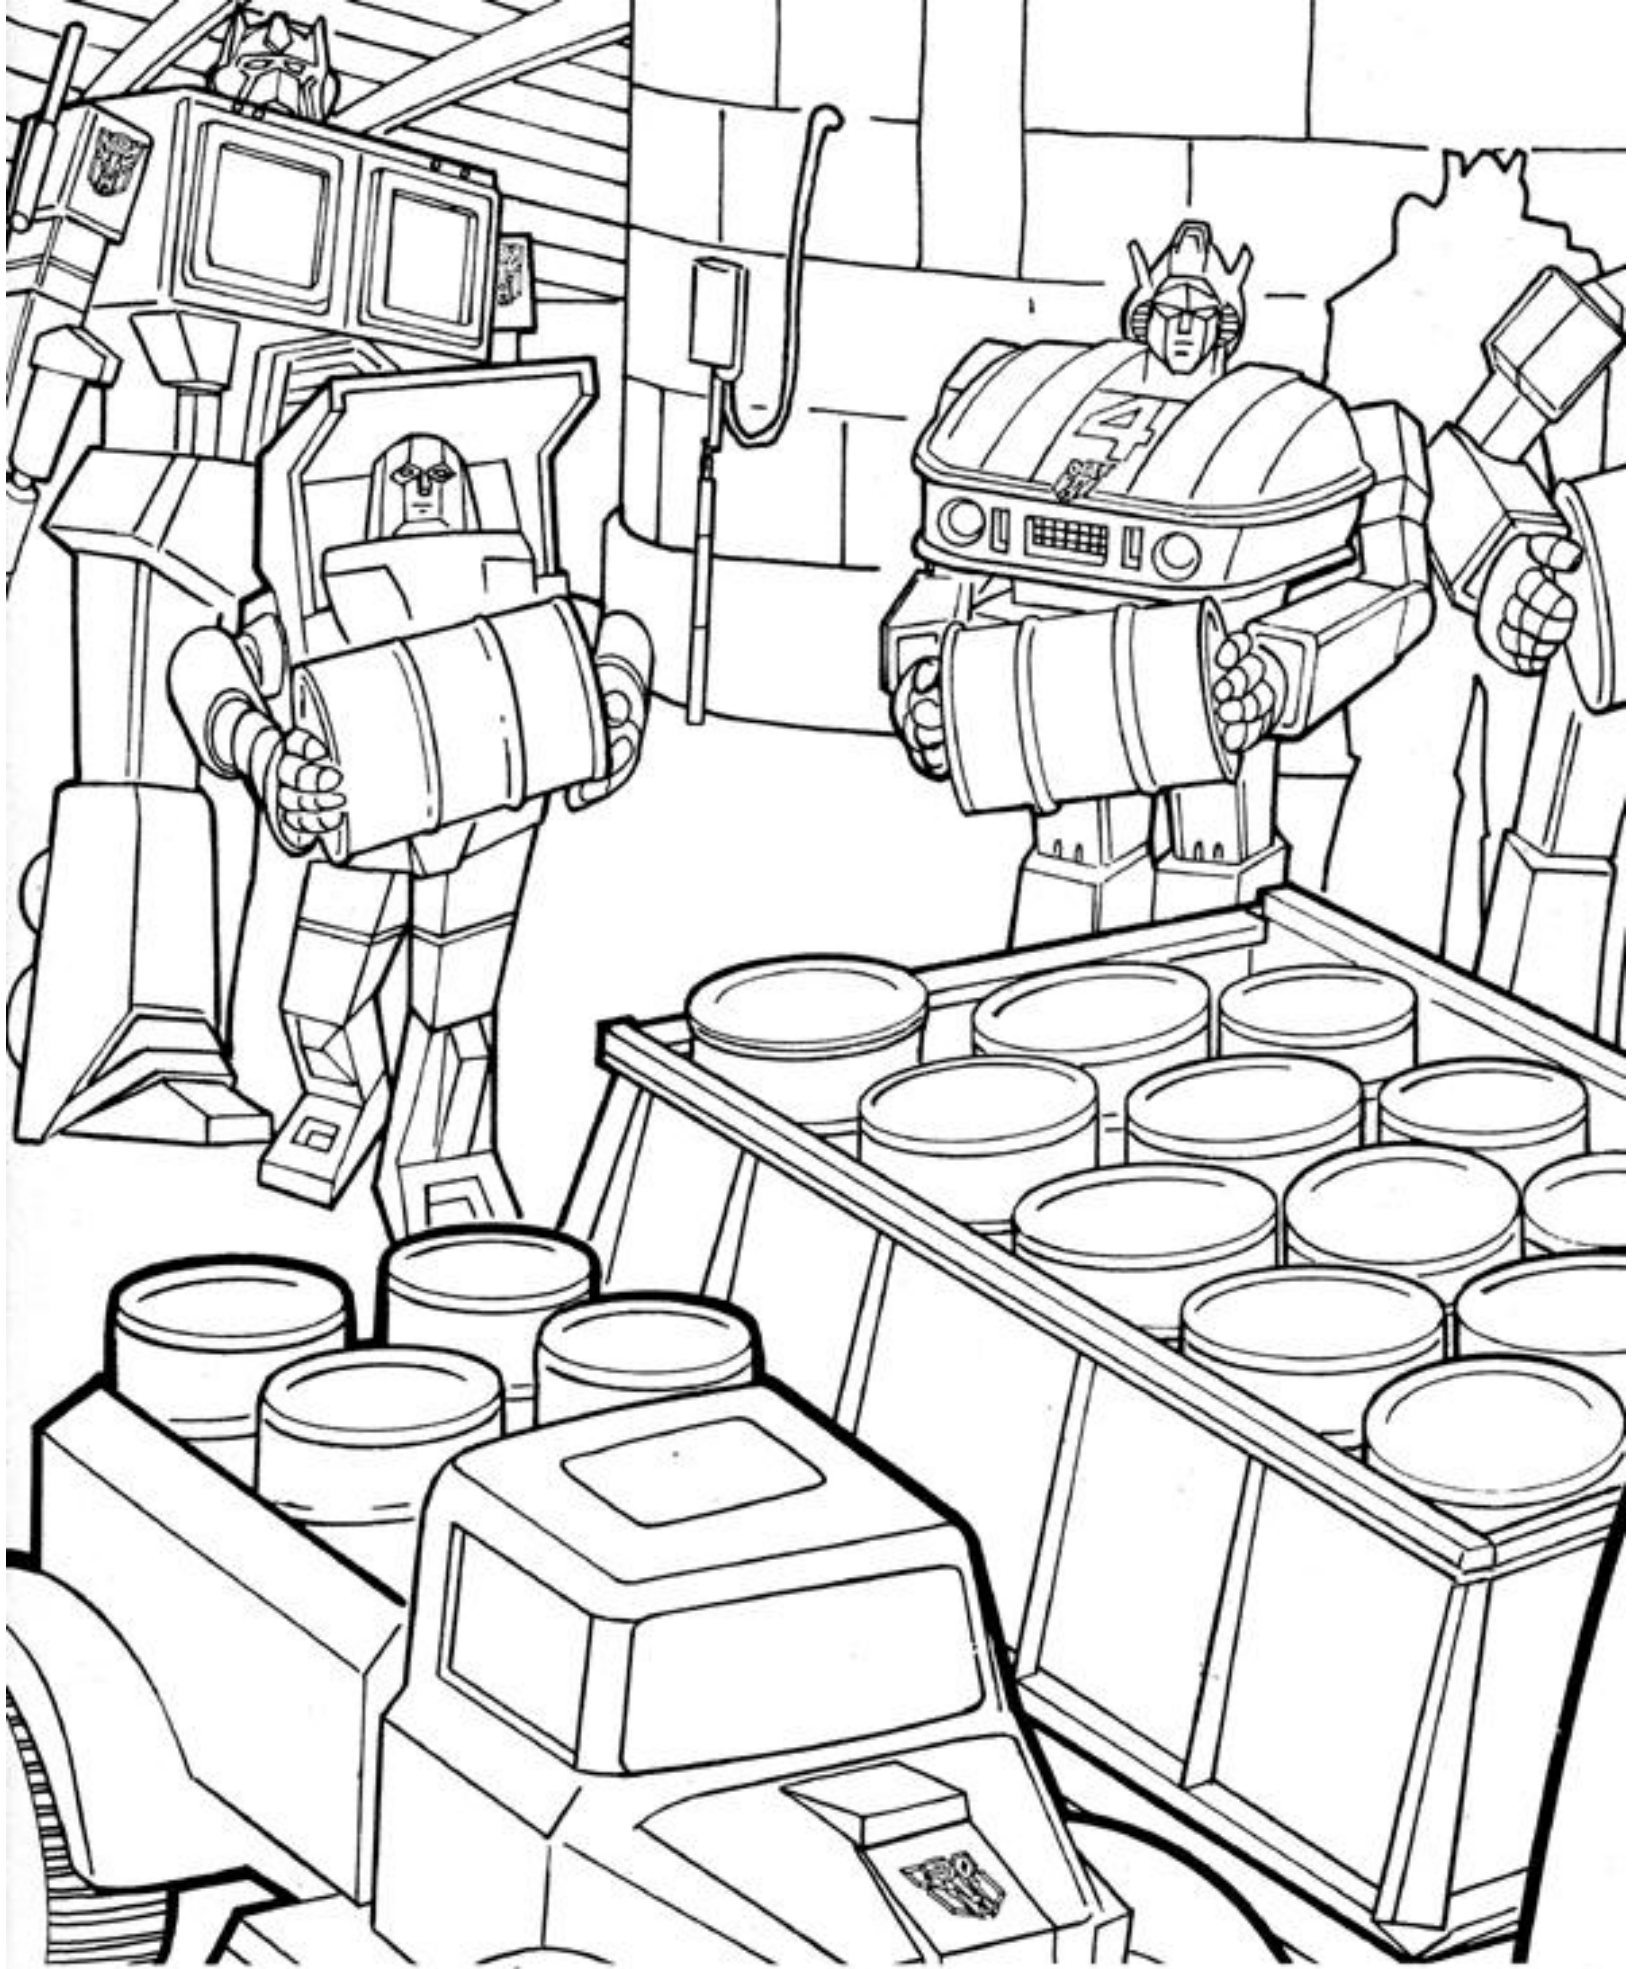

"First," Optimus decides, "we should find out where they've hidden all of the stolen fuel. Then get some gasoline to Ironhide!"

When Optimus' orders have been carried out, he tells Ratchet. "Now you must dismantle the Decepticons' device so that it can never be used again!"

"What's happened to the Decepticons?" Jazz asks.
"Look, they're sneaking off," says Ironhide.

"Let them go," Optimus says. "Right now it's more important that we return this fuel to where it's needed."

Will this defeat teach Megatron a lesson? Don't count on it."
